All Nations Send Pilgrims to Shrine Of Christ's Birth

Most Solemn Mass in All Christendom Held in Church Built Around Manger in Bethlehem.

CASTE FORGOTTEN
IN HOLY HOUR

Ships Discharge Thousands for Participation in Commemoration of Birth of World's Savior.

Bethlehem, December 24.—(United News)—Celebration of the most solemn mass in Christendom began tonight at the Church of the Nativity, erected over the traditional birthplace of Christ.

Stopping as they entered the basilica by a diminutive door, actually in breach in the wall, pilgrims from all parts of the world reverently felt that way to the nook where Mary, anxious to be out of sight of men at the inn above, spread her mats in a subterranean chamber half natural cave, half hewn and hallowed in the rock.

Universal tradition has sanctified this cave-chamber as the exact spot of nativity, the manger, "warm with the soft breath of the cattle."

A marble manger has replaced the old. A silver star shines on the floor, myriads of twinkling candles pierce the darkness.

The oldest Christian church is still in use, built by Empress Helena, mother of Constantine, who erected also two churches on the Mount of Olives, one to mark the site of the ascension, the other the cave in which Jesus was supposed to have taught his disciples. The Church of Nativity has not been materially altered since its construction.

Cosmopolitan Audience. To this church Monday night came the most colorful congregation assembled under any roof. Consuls of the Catholic nations in evening dress, English and other European residents with the peasants of Bethlehem, their women wearing their peculiar medieval dress, squatting on the floor and straining to catch a sound of the Latin liturgy intoned by gorgeously robed bishops.

Other places in the Holy Land have their day, but it is Bethlehem, the birthplace of Christ, and of King David, the scene of the story of the book of Ruth, which is the focal point of Christianity at present.

Ships carrying tourists on Mediterranean cruises have timed their arrival in Palestine to enable their passengers to reach Bethlehem before midnight. The Mediterranean cruiser Empress of Austria of the Canadian Pacific line, carrying about 400 passengers, mostly American, was the first to arrive. The road which runs from the port of Haifa to Jerusalem through Nazareth and ancient Shechem, is choked with pilgrim traffic. Christian natives began their pilgrimage on foot.

Many Sees in City. Christmas in Jerusalem would achieve even greater grandeur if all Christians in Palestine celebrated it at the same time. Of about 75,000 Christians in the country, there are probably not more than 10,000 in the Holy City, and they belong to some 16 different churches with different calendars.

Adherents of the Greek Orthodox, Roman Catholic, Greek Uniate, Anglican, Georgian, Armenian, Uniate, Armenian, Jacobite, Uniate Jacobites, Coptic, Abyssinians, Uniate Abyssinians, Maronites, Chaldeans, Lutherans and other churches all have their day at the Church of Nativity.

Those adhering to the Latin and Anglican calendar celebrate the beginning of Christmas Monday night, all other 13 days later.

The scene of tonight's devotion is the Latin Church of St. Catherine. The cave is in almost complete darkness, huge candles electrically wired in recent years, however, throw their light on the transept. During the greater part of the mass the aisle is screened from the public, only the few fortunate Europeans close to the chancel being privileged to glimpse the ceremonial robing and disrobing of the patriarch, clothed alternatively in gold and scarlet.

Is Grand Simplicity. In this church where the 1,101 Baldwin was crowned king, the humblest Christian peasant from the country-side and poorest Bethlehem girl, who year in year out works at roses and crosses of mother of pearl and coral, feels at home.

The grand simplicity of the architecture pervades the church and congregation. Women in evening dress kneel beside farm lasses before the same chancel. Carefully manicured fingers and calloused hands receive from

FOURTEEN KILLED IN CELEBRATIONS OF CHRISTMAS DAY

Cartersville, Ga., Turns From Gaiety to Sorrow as Match Ignites Fireworks, Children Die.

Fourteen persons in the south, 11 of them children, were reported to have been burned to death Monday in a series of pre-Christmas fires. Six of the victims lost their lives in two Georgia cities, Cartersville and Washington. Other southern cities to report tragedies were Greenville, S. C., and Hazard, Ky.

At Cartersville, Ga., four children were trapped in a blazing store and fatally burned. The fire was reported to have been caused by the lighted stub of a cigarette or cigar thrown in a stock of Christmas firecrackers.

A toy pistol and a revolver shot were blamed for the deaths of two children at Washington, Ga. One of the children was killed when a revolver fell and discharged a cartridge and the other when a toy pistol ignited gasoline fumes.

Cartersville, Ga., December 24.—(P) Death today claimed four children who were earning Christmas money as temporary clerks in a fireworks store, when a Roman candle, lighted by a customer, caused an explosion which enveloped the building in flames.

The charred bodies of William Shaw, 12, and Frances Shaw, 15, children of the proprietor of the store, C. Davis Shaw, and Mary Bell Dodd, 16, were brought out of the blazing building by firemen, who were forced to fight the flames for fifteen minutes before they could enter.

Mary Kennedy, 18, who with the three other children were earning extra holiday money by working in the fireworks store, was burned so badly that she died tonight at 7:45 o'clock. Hugh Padgett, 11, was severely burned, and his father, Paul Padgett, was badly cut above the face in an attempt to escape through a show window. Young Padgett's condition is critical, but doctors say he has a fighting chance to live.

J. R. Shellhorse, Jr., 17, dashed into the burning building and attempted to carry the Dodd girl outside, but, crazed by the sudden blast of heat, she fought him off and rushed back into the flames. The youth made his escape with both hands badly burned.

Shaw, proprietor of the store, told police an unknown man, whom he believed to have been intoxicated, entered the store in which a number of persons were shopping. Paul Padgett, a large Roman candle from a counter.

Before anyone could stop him, Shaw said, he had lighted the fuse and began firing the hot balls of flame about the store. Other fireworks were ignited and while the man with the Roman candle being taken outside, the swift staccato explosions of the smaller crackers were followed swiftly by the deeper detonations of the larger ones.

The entire store immediately was enveloped in flames, only a few of those in the building escaping without minor burns.

Wall street, on which the store was located, became immediately a confused mass of terror-stricken shoppers, and firemen were hindered in their rescue work until the street had been partially cleared.

The building was an old structure, occupied jointly by the fireworks store and a habitation.

COOLIDGES TO GET AIR MAIL SERVICE ON SAPELO ISLAND

Washington, December 24.—(P) Howard E. Coffin, who will be host to President and Mrs. Coolidge on Sapelo island, off the coast of Georgia, has arranged to have an airplane available to transport mail to and from the mainland if it is needed.

While no arrangements have been made at the white house for utilizing the president's recent vacation trips, the plane will be at the disposal of the chief executive. It arrived at Bolling field here today, piloted by Arthur Caperton, and will hop off early tomorrow morning for Sapelo island.

Yesteryear—and Today!

This Bountiful Christmas Day

By Sam W. Small

The sixtieth Christmas of The Constitution comes to us in circumstances as strangely different from that first one back in 1868 as though we were now living on a different planet and in a state of civilization that could not have been imagined by the people six decades ago.

Then we were yet groping through the penumbra of the unforgettable war between the states, in the smoke of which had vanished our vision of a strong new nation and from the ashes of which we were seeking to recover the symbols of hope and courage.

But even then we were reaching up the shackled hands of optimistic hearts to push away the somber clouds above us and the hostile obstructions ahead of us. It was to take strong leadership of those hearts and hands that The Constitution was born and took on instant power, even as Minerva in the moment of her leap from the brain of Jove, as the champion of the constitutional rights of our untested people.

What wonders of inspired endeavor, of invention and progress in every field, have since been recorded on the pages of The Constitution it would take a large volume to recite. Then we had no electric lights, electric mechanisms in home, field and factory; no wireless telegraphy, no radio to enlighten and delight fifty millions of listeners in the same moment; no photographs, player pianos and no telephony and television; not a typewriter in the whole city and the typesetting machine yet undreamed of in the brain of 12-year-old Otto Mergenthaler; no airplanes, no Orville Wright, Lindbergh, or air-mail pilots zooming across the continent by day and by night!

Oh, compared with today we who lived in the Christmas of 1868 were not far removed from those who crowded the inn of Bethlehem when the blessed Mother gave birth in the manger of a stable to the Only Begotten of God!

But, believe me, Atlanta and all Georgia had that year, for the first time in seven, a revival of the old-fashioned Christmas of "befo' the war!" In an atmosphere of fresh confidence in God and their future it seemed that every one, whether dimwitted or with a dollar, joined in a general joy and Santa Claus again reigned in all his glory!

There are but a handful of us yet living who can recall that precious and prophetic day and but few of this generation can visualize it with all its pleasures and pathos.

So I turn from the hopeless task of filming its memorabilia to bring a near-octogenarian's "Merry Christmas" good wishes to a new people in a transformed world!

We should strongly and reverently realize the wonderful goodness of God to the people of Atlanta, of Georgia and our great republic. The riches of Egypt, the fatness of the Promised Land, the amities of fabled Atlantis were not as many and common as ours. Until there is "a new heaven and a new earth," as God will establish them, it is hard to conceive how any nation can have more of the muniments of peace on earth, good will to men, ease of existence as the reward of honest labor, the aids of science, the adornments of art, and the exhilarations of enterprise, than we have right now in providential America!

Blessed indeed is the people "whose God is the Lord" and who have wisdom and power to preserve themselves from the degrading forces of indolence, luxury and libertinism.

Recalling the many Christmas days on which I have voiced a cheery greeting to the big army of readers of The Constitution, I remember no one of them in which my heart throbbled with warmer and more affectionate sentiments than it does today. Each time that the Yule-dock chimes its Christmas hours it deducts from the calendar of my possible occasions to rejoice with The Constitution's far-flung family and to cry "Hail and Happy Day" to its members.

But today it is my joyful privilege to congratulate them upon the widespread blessings of our city, state and country; the comparative opulence of our homes in 1928 over those we had in 1868; and the universal spirit of fraternity, national unity, and individual righteousness, that distinguish us amongst all the peoples of Christendom.

May the marvelous mercies of our Christ and the benedictions of His and our Father be with us all in this bountiful Christmas day.

BIG SAVING SEEN IN RATE CHANGES

City Electrician Says Electric and Gas Revision Will Be of Great Benefit to Atlanta.

New electric and gas rates ordered by the Georgia public service commission, effective January 1, form one of the best Christmas gifts Atlanta and Georgia have received in many years. R. C. Turner, city electrician, declared Monday in a statement referring to the controversy over the rates as "unrealistic" in the opinion of one who has made a study of electric and gas rates for years.

Pointing out that he advocated the exact rates adopted by the commission, with the exception of the service charges, when he appeared before the commission at the November hearing, Mr. Turner said that he believes that the new rates are entirely fair to all parties concerned.

James L. Mayson, city attorney of Atlanta, in a statement Monday, declared that the new service charge method used in the gas rate and the electric rate would bring revenue of more than $1,500,000 a year to the Georgia Power company in addition to the revenue derived from gas and electric charges. He based his figures on the listed number of consumers of electric and gas service as shown by the books of the public service commission.

"No Small Consumers." "With reference to small consumers, we really have no small consumers of gas and electricity in the manner that the term was formerly used," said Turner. "The consumption of electric current by the average family has increased over 100 per cent in the past five years because of the numerous electrical appliances now in use in the average household. The majority of consumers use on an average of 1,000 feet of gas per month for each member of the household, and for heating of water."

The additional revenue in service charges is a matter of little importance as the saving effected in the new schedule of rates will more than offset these charges, Mr. Turner said. "The new electric rates alone will save the consumers of Atlanta more than $200,000 yearly," he stated.

"For an instance, take my own gas and electric bill. During the last month I used 101 kilowatt hours of electricity, for which I will be required to pay $8.17 net, whereas, under the new schedule of rates, I will be required to pay only $5.06, showing a saving of $3.11, and adding to this a service charge of $1, I still have a saving of $2.11, of more than 25 per cent saving, under the new schedule of rates to anyone consuming a like amount of current."

Saving in Gas Cost. "In the matter of gas, I used 5,300 cubic feet during the last month, for which I will be required to pay $7.91 net. Under the new schedule of rates,

AMERICA WILL SEND REPRESENTATIVES TO REPARATIONS MEET

J. L. CONE NAMED CITY PAYMASTER; MASON ASSISTANT

Prominent Figure in Political and Civic Circles Heads New Department of Local Government.

Appointment of John L. Cone, prominent in Atlanta political and civic circles for the past several years, as head of the newly created department of paymaster of the city government, and Meredith Mason as Mr. Cone's assistant, was announced Monday by B. Graham West, city controller.

Mr. Cone has been active in local political affairs for many years and was one of the principal campaigners for preservation of the present form of government in the election held May 25, 1927. The election was for the purpose of establishing a city manager form of government in lieu of the mayor-council system. Voters overwhelmingly declined to consider the city manager system.

In announcing Mr. Cone's appointment, Mr. West declared he believed his selection would meet with public approval because of the appointee's qualifications for the post and his popularity.

"I feel that Mr. Cone will give the city good service and will reflect credit on the organization," Mr. West said.

When reached at his home Monday night, Mr. Cone declared he would accept the position thus offered. "It is with a degree of pride in the service I believe I can render the city of Atlanta that I accept the position," Mr. Cone said.

Mr. Mason, who will be Mr. Cone's assistant, has been employed as paymaster in the department of construction for the past several months and is thoroughly cognizant with the duties of his new position.

The appointment will be effective under the ordinance creating the post, January 1, 1929.

In establishing the department, city council ratified recommendations of Mayor L. N. Ragsdale, and a special council committee named to investigate the feasibility and necessity of the department, and the city controller, Alderman G. Everett Millican, of the tenth ward, headed the council committee and championed the measure.

Mr. Cone is prominently affiliated with many fraternal organizations and is a veteran of the Spanish-American war. He is a Mason and a Shriner and commander of the Lee Roosevelt camp, No. 6, Spanish-American War Veterans, the largest camp in the state. He also is adjutant general of the Georgia division and aide on the staff of the national commander, William Grayson, of Savannah.

N. Y. POLICE NAB 183 ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Suspected Holdup Men, Bootleggers and Burglars Rounded Up; Whalen Praises Efforts.

New York, December 24.—(P)—The New York police department today made the city a Christmas present of one of the most elaborate assortments of criminals ever rounded up in Father Knickerbocker's little colony of 6,000,000 souls.

One hundred and eighty-three prisoners, collected in a week-end drive by the police under the spur of their new commissioner, Grover A. Whalen, appeared in the lineup at headquarters today for inspection by 500 detectives. The throng of suspects included holdup men, speakeasy proprietors, bootleggers and burglars and when each had his turn on the little platform in the headquarters gymnasium the entire band was hustled off to magistrate courts for arraignment on various charges.

Inspection and questioning of the suspects by the detectives revealed that many had records, and in most cases had had their turn on the little platform in the past.

When the lineup had dispersed Commissioner Whalen praised the police for their work and wished the regiment of detectives a Merry Christmas.

Eating, Giving Will Feature Joyous Day

Enthusiastic and Well-Balanced Program.

ATLANTA, as in past years, is observing in 1928 an enthusiastic, well-balanced Christmas. There was Santa's visit in the wee small hours of this morning, and there was the usual Christmas eve merrymaking Monday night, while here and there in the city were heard the voices of carolers, singing the songs of old-time Christmases. And there were the sharp reports of cannon crackers, muffled by distance in some cases, unpleasantly near in others.

As in by-gone days, merry groups gathered to trim the Christmas tree while the youngsters peeped out from under the covers and wondered if a chance visit downstairs would be discovered. And there were, thanks to the Campfire Girls, thousands of twinkling colored lights, blinking forth cheer and hospitality from Atlanta's lawns where the living trees were lighted.

Downtown Streets Jammed. Downtown Atlanta Monday looked like downtown Atlanta on a football Saturday, except that the crowds on the streets Monday were in a spending mood and the crowds on football Saturdays are more intent on getting to the football game than anything else.

It was a hectic day for the police and Boy Scouts, who were assisting the department in public safety in keeping traffic hazards at a minimum. Eight Boy Scouts were on duty at each downtown intersection. They stood with ropes at every corner and held pedestrians in line until the lights flashed the green forward sign.

CHRISTMAS BRINGS JOY TO ALL KING

Entire Family Again United as Doctors Announce Ruler Recovering Rapidly.

London, December 24.—(P)—Christmas eve brought to King George of England new hope for his recovery and the blessing of a united family.

The physicians attending his majesty reported tonight that slow improvement in both general and local conditions of his illness was continuing. At the same time it became known that on three occasions during his extended battle against tenacious disease the doctors considered him to be at the very gates of death.

England's Christmas joy is thus much greater in the assurance that the loved sovereign has come safely through the darkest part of the valley and for a week has been climbing steadily although slowly to higher ground. The brief bulletin issued at 8:30 p. m. tonight at Buckingham palace said: "The very slow progress in his majesty's local and general condition continues. No bulletin will be issued until Tuesday evening."

This will be the second time—the other was last Sunday—in about six weeks that the royal physician has had such confidence in the progress of their patient's condition that they have believed one bulletin in 24 hours efficient for the reassurance of the public.

The sick king and his brave and faithful queen had cause for happiness tonight for they had gathered around the bedside of the monarch, some members of which came from the ends of the earth for love of their father. The Duke of Gloucester, the last to arrive, reached the palace today after weeks of travel from southern Africa. The Prince of Wales, who had made a quicker homeward journey, displayed his lively spirits by hunting today with the quorn hounds at Malton Moor.

He returned to London this evening. With his brother, the Duke of York, he dined with Queen Mary tonight. Although the ultra-ray treatment was not given to the king tonight it was authoritatively understood that this therapy has not been abandoned but was only interrupted temporarily.

YOUNG, ROBINSON MAY SIT ON BOARD TO REVISE PLANS

Kellogg, After Conference With Coolidge, Agrees To Participation in Paris Conference.

REPRESENTATIVES NOT TO BE OFFICIAL

Men Will Be Named by Interested Nations, But Consensus of Opinion Favors Coolidge Choice.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER. Washington, December 24.—(United News)—The United States has consented to the request of European powers that they be permitted to select American experts to serve on the commission which is about to revise the Dawes reparations plan.

The powers concerned will select the American experts. This government will make no official suggestions as to who should be named. It is known, however, that selection of any of the following would be acceptable to this government: Owen D. Young and Henry M. Robinson, who were members of the original Dawes commission; Thomas Nelson Perkins, Boston lawyer, who has served as an unofficial expert for the reparations commission, and Jeremiah Smith, of Boston, who acted as financial advisor in rehabilitating Hungary's finances some years ago.

Kellogg's Statement. The request of the European powers was presented to Secretary Kellogg today through Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador and dean of the diplomatic corps here. Afterward the state department issued this statement:

"Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, called upon the secretary of state this morning and informed him in the name of the six governments interested in the reparations problem that they wished to inquire whether the United States government would agree to American experts taking part in the work of the proposed committee which is to deal with the final settlement of the problem, and whether, if so, the United States government would be ready to propose the names of such American experts."

"The British ambassador explained to the secretary of state that if the

MACON MAN KILLED IN AUTO COLLISION

Macon, Ga., December 24.—(P)—

Edward M. Kent, 28 years old, of Macon, was killed and his brother, Louis Kent, and Tom Garrison, 19 years old, of Orange, Va., were seriously injured when their automobile collided with one driven by F. Ford, employee of a local theater, here today. Kent is survived by his widow and one child; his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Kent, of Macon; a brother and a sister. Garrison was visiting the Kents.

15 HARSH, GALLOGLY
INDICTMENTS DRAWN

Bills To Be Presented Friday Charge Highway Robbery to Pair.

Fifteen indictments charging George R. Harsh, confessed collegiate thrill slayer, and his alleged accomplice, Dick Gallogly, with highway robbery, will be presented to the Fulton county grand jury for approval Friday. Solicitor General John A. Boykin announced Monday.

The regular semi-weekly session of the grand jury scheduled for today has been cancelled on account of the holiday.

The indictments to be sought against Harsh and Gallogly cover the list of holdups to which Harsh confessed and implicated his alleged accomplice. They include the robbery of a drug store in North Boulevard, in which Willard Smith was slain, and the holdup of an A&P grocery at 1004 Hemphill street, in which S. H. Meeks, assistant manager, was killed in a gun duel with Harsh.

The returning of the robbery indictments Harsh and Gallogly is merely a formal procedure, inasmuch as both are being held without bail on murder indictments, Solicitor General Boykin said.

"The chances are Harsh and Gallogly will never be brought to trial on the robbery charges," Mr. Boykin said, "but we are going to be on the safe side and have all the charges possible returned against these two boys."

The list, as given out by Mr. Boykin, follows:

July 12—Pan-Am filling station, West Peachtree and North avenue. H. B. Jackson, manager, amount unknown.

August 7—A. & P. store, 834 Juniper, O. G. Moore, manager; Leon Stamey, assistant manager, $103.44.

July 24—Seminole Soda and Delicatessen company, 690 Seminole avenue, Pete Pappas, manager, amount not shown.

September 6—M. Gordon, 194 Harris street, N. W., $89 money and $6 check.

September 10—Reed Oil company, 237 Whitehall street, F. H. Crespo, manager, amount not shown.

September 18—Gulf Refining company, Lakeview and Ponce de Leon, near ball park, amount not shown.

September 23—Reed Oil company, 292 South Boulevard, R. H. Wright, manager, amount not shown.

October 5—Pall's Drug company, 1395 Highland avenue, A. D. Bennett, manager, amount not shown.

October 5—Ivy Drug company, Emory university, amount not shown. Sandwich shop next door robbed same night.

October 6—Drug store at 222 Ponce de Leon avenue, A. H. Drucker, manager.

October 6—Drug store at 368 Fifth street, N. E., S. Sisselman.

October 6—Barber shop at 907 Hemphill avenue.

October 6—A. & P. store, 1004 Hemphill avenue, L. V. Ellis, manager. Meeks was shot.

October 13—Standard Oil, Lee and Park street, N. V. Banks, manager. Three men in this robbery.

October 16—McRoberts Drug company, 908 Boulevard, N. E., Willard Smith, manager. Smith was killed.

HEBREW CLASSES

Special Sessions To Be Held All This Week.

Special sessions of all classes and activities of the United Hebrew school will be held each morning of this week, it was announced Monday by I. J. Lapson, principal of the school.

The schedule for the remainder of the week was as announced by Lapson as follows: Classes Aleph, Beth and Gimmel One will meet at 11 o'clock each morning; classes Daleth, Heb. and Gimmel Two at 9 o'clock; and the extension classes at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. The dramatic club, which is under the direction of Mrs. I. J. Lapson, will hold a special meeting at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning, and the Service club under the direction of A. Lapin will meet at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning.

MCURRY EXONERATED IN SLAYING OF WATSON

Coroner's Jury Hears Testimony That Shooting Was in Self-Defense.

A coroner's jury Monday afternoon exonerated J. D. McCurry, 404 Venira street, in the fatal shooting late Sunday afternoon of Lee Watson, 27-year-old Kirkwood brickmason.

Testimony at an inquest conducted at the undertaking establishment of Ed Bond and Condon in Ivy street was to the effect that McCurry shot and killed Watson after the latter had forced his way into the McCurry home and began firing a small caliber pistol.

Witnesses testified that earlier in the day Watson had appeared in an intoxicated condition. McCurry told the jury that he did not open fire on Watson until the intruder had shot from his own pistol. McCurry said he shot first to halt Watson but the latter continued firing.

"I was forced to kill him to protect my own life and the lives of my wife and children," McCurry said.

The verdict of justifiable homicide was returned by the jury after only a few minutes deliberation.

The body of Watson was taken Monday night to his former home at Newnan, where his widowed mother and six sisters survive.

Hardmans Leave
For Holiday Trip To South Georgia

Governor and Mrs. L. G. Hardman left Atlanta Monday for Valdosta, for a Christmas visit to Mr. and Mrs. K. N. Griffin, parents of Mrs. Hardman. They will leave Valdosta probably Thursday noon for Sapelo island to spend Friday with President and Mrs. Coolidge, guests of Howard Coffin, millionaire developer.

They will go to Brunswick, where they will be met by Mr. Coffin in an automobile and taken to the latter's beautiful home on Sapelo Island, near Brunswick.

President Coolidge and his party are expected to arrive at the home of Mr. Coffin Wednesday. Besides Governor Hardman and Mrs. Hardman, Mr. Coffin has invited several other distinguished Georgians to meet President Coolidge during the visit.

Arrangements have been made for entertaining the president on a hunting trip near the island and other entertainment features will be promoted during the stay of the president.

The home of Mr. Coffin is one of the most beautiful estates in the country and is one of the show places of the Georgia coast. It is located near some of the best hunting preserves in the country, while all kinds of fish abound the streams, bays and inlet near Sapelo island.

Governor and Mrs. Hardman will spend Friday and probably a part of Saturday as the guest of Mr. Coffin.

MILLION-DOLLAR
CAMPAIGN OF ADS

The rapid expansion of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., has brought under their direction the extensive interests of the Stanley Company of America and First National Pictures, Inc. Both the latter companies were already closely associated. This combination of interests has brought to Warner Bros. an alliance with a large number of theaters reaching from coast to coast.

The million dollar newspaper advertising campaign for Vitaphone, which has been in progress for some time, has brought results even beyond the great expectations with which it was inaugurated. As a result it will be continued under the direction of Myer Lesser, president of the Blaine-Thompson company, of Cincinnati and New York.

It is now announced that Warner Bros. have given the Blaine-Thompson company, in addition to the Warner Bros. advertising, full charge of future advertising to be placed by First National Pictures, Inc. Also this company will place all out-door advertising for Warner Bros., the Vitaphone corporation, and First National Pictures, Inc.

CLARKE TO ASSUME POST AS MASTER OF ATLANTA LODGE

M. L. B. Clarke will assume the office of worshipful master of Atlanta lodge No. 59, F. & A. M., on New Year's day as the result of an election of officers held at the 82nd annual communication of the lodge, it was announced Monday.

Other officers elected for the coming year are O. D. White, senior warden; D. C. Meredith, junior warden; George Greenoe, treasurer; R. H. Carpenter, secretary; Percy H. Perkins, Jr., senior deacon; N. W. Cheney, junior deacon; R. N. Fickett, III, senior steward; Joseph E. Berman, junior steward; W. H. Terrell, director; Masonic Temple company; R. N. Fickett, Jr., hall trustee; and Walter C. Taylor, member board of relief. R. N. Fickett, Jr., Fred H. Sneed and W. E. Carney were elected as the finance committee.

Americus Man, Who
Was Shot by Police
Chief, Will Recover

Americus, Ga., December 24.—(Special)—Louie Brunner, who was shot in a pistol duel with officers here will recover. He was wounded four times, one bullet passed through his right cheek, another penetrated the right arm, another the right hip and a fourth the right wrist.

Chief of Police John Worthy, who was struck by a bullet from Brunner's revolver, was not injured, the missile being deflected by a knife carried in a pocket. The knife was torn apart by the force of the bullet.

Brunner fired six shots at the officers, who returned the fire. It was at the home of Frank Lee where Brunner had created a disturbance, according to Chief Worthy and Lieutenant Ross. The officers said every effort was made to accomplish the arrest of Brunner without resort to firearms, but the man precipitated the shooting by firing upon them as soon as they appeared. Brunner was drinking heavily at the time of the shooting, it was said.

Hope Given Up

Brunswick, Ga., December 24.—(P)—Search for U. A. Edwards, Brunswick automobile dealer, who has been missing since Friday afternoon, was abandoned Monday and he has been given up as drowned.

Edward's speed boat, in which he left on a short duck hunt Friday afternoon, was found on the Jekyll Island beach yesterday. It is believed that Edwards fell from the boat while shooting duck.

Thousands of Atlanta Folk Heading Home for Christmas

MOTHER'S TURKEY PROVIDES GREATEST LURE

BY L. A. FARRELL.
PEED and god-speed were in heavy demand Monday, for as each train thundered in and out of Atlanta the locomotives all were singing the same joyous refrain — "I'm Headin' Home."
Downtown Atlanta looked like a deserted village compared to the rush and hubbub at the Terminal and Union stations. Every ticket window had its long line of anxious and impatient patrons, all laden heavily with Christmas bundles to spread about among the homefolks and provide evidence that they were "making good in the city." Of course there were some who didn't go. Some who seek their fortune only find misfortune, but then Mother and Father always can be told that business is too pressing. Every body can't get off duty on the same day. The world must move.

Mother's turkey and pudding doubtless provided the greatest lure, for who is it that can find turkey better cooked than Mother used to do it? And who is it who knows just how to add the fixin' in Mother's own inimitable style? Chels can draw down their thousands a year for recipes alone, but Mother can excel them all and draw only a smile and a kiss and love from the patrons of the home table.

East, west, north and south, they came and went. Railroad officials were unwilling even to estimate the travel but some hazarded a guess that upwards of 40,000 persons were going home for the holiday while nearly half that many were returning to Atlanta.

from other places whither they had drifted. Joyland specials, these trains were, joyful were their cargoes. Jeune men women and children with hearts and months aching for what mother will have ready when the little white house is reached.

And though many houses in the city were darkened Monday night because of the absence of those who live therein there were others in which the lights shone brighter and the gleam spread farther for a son or a daughter had come home, many bringing their own sons and daughters. Family reunions and family unions were in order.

There were many notes of humor and pathos in the shifting and mingling crowds at the stations, but perhaps the most touching was the young fellow docketed out in his class if not expertly tailored new suit who meekly approached the traveler's aid secretary and inquired sheepishly: "Lady, what time does my train leave out, please?"

Of course the secretary had to ask and find out where he was going and on what road. After some effort, she loaded him and his bundles on a south-bound train and Monday night he was sharing his happiness with the "folks down home."

KILLED AND ROBBED OF XMAS PAY ROLL BY THREE NEGROES

Eufaula, Ala., December 24.—(AP)—Perry Hood, Pickens county logging camp owner, was killed and then robbed of his Christmas payroll near here today. Three negroes, believed by Sheriff W. J. Harding to have been responsible, escaped after firing several shots at E. W. Hood, brother of the slain man.

R. R. VALUING LAW CONTESTED IN COURT

Supreme Tribunal To Pass on Constitutionality of Act.

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—The government's defense of the constitutionality of the methods of the interstate commerce commission in valuing railroad property, challenged by the St. Louis and O'Fallon railroad, was submitted to the supreme court today in a brief signed by Attorney General Sargent.

The brief, to constitute the government's argument in court on January 2, was submitted by George W. Wickersham, former attorney general and special government counsel in the case. In the brief Wickersham asks the court to affirm the decision of a statutory three judge court at St. Louis which held that the government was entitled to recover excess earnings from the O'Fallon road.

Contention of Suit.
Wickersham maintained that the true basis of valuing public utility property as laid down by the supreme court was "that neither reproduction cost nor original cost is alone a criterion of value, or to be given dominant consideration, but that the rate making body must take all elements and measures of value into consideration, and analyze and ascribe to each its proper weight in the light of the evidence of the case."

The action of the interstate commerce commission in rejecting the spot cost of reproduction as the sole basis of valuation in the recapture order was, Mr. Wickersham declared, in conformity with the intention of congress in framing the transportation act of 1920.

Contending that the railroad in effect had attacked the whole transportation act by urging a construction which would make it impracticable and by challenging its constitutionality, Mr. Wickersham asserted that the supreme court had broadly upheld the act in all the cases which involved its consideration and added that the recapture clause of the act invaded no right of the company.

He held the railroad in effect contended that the commission erred because it did not fix the value of the carrier's property solely on the basis of cost of reproduction, based on prices prevailing during the time covered by the recapture order, and insisted that the decision of the supreme court in the Indianapolis water case, relied upon by the railroad as the basis for this contention, was never intended to affect such a valuation. He added that it was clearly shown that the commission's order did not involve confiscation.

Other less important questions presented in the controversy were argued in the brief, which asked also that the lower court's decision with regard to the interest the government should receive on these earnings be changed in conformity with the claims of the government.

CHICAGO OPERA TO SEND YOUTHS TO STUDY MUSIC

Chicago, December 24.—(AP)—Directors of the Chicago Civic Opera company today announced the formation of European scholarships for Chicago students. Three will be selected each year through elimination contests and will receive a year's musical training in European centers.

Successful students will be given another year of training, all expenses paid, leading to auditions for engagement with the civic opera.

The endowment was provided by Samuel Insull, president of the opera, Stanley Field, Ernest R. Graham, Louis B. Kuppenheimer and Edward F. Swift.

The first scholarship assignments will be made November 1, 1929.

Back Home for Christmas After Absence of 65 Years

HAPPY TIMES FOR KENTUCKY FAMILY

Whitesburg, Ky., December 24.—(AP)—There is going to be a real Christmas celebration for four residents of this little village this year after 65 years of waiting and hoping.

It's because Jim Stamper came home, home to the hills that bore him. For 65 long years two brothers and two sisters had wondered and worried about Jim Stamper. Each year they gathered around the family Christmas tree to make merry, but each year the absence of "Brother Jim" cast a gloom over the group. This year it's going to be different.

Sixty-five years ago Jim said goodbye to brothers and sisters and trudged away, a boy of 14, out to make his way in the world. The other day Jim came back, grizzled and gray and possessed of the fortune he went to seek, to spend the holidays with his family. "Happy? I'll say I am!" said Jim, as tears of joy glistened in his eyes. "I wanted to get back years ago, but always business affairs kept me away."

Changes? Of course there are. My brothers and I didn't know each other. I could not realize that time had made so many changes, that threads of gray had come to my younger brother and my sisters, whom I left as children.

Jim—although wealthy he is always "Jim" to the Whitesburg folk—is staying with his brothers. Stephen and Hiram Stamper. Daily he goes to visit his two sisters, Mrs. Katie Ison and Mrs. Mary Ison. Jim's story of his life sounds like a page from Horatio Alger. Practically penniless, and a lad of 14, he tramped 200 miles on foot to Lexington, Ky., to reach a railroad. From there he worked his way gradually towards the west coast, of which he had heard marvelous tales. Time went on and Jim bought a fruit farm with his savings. The fruit farm was successful and Jim bought more land. Today he is said to own one of the largest fruit farms in California.

But somehow, with all his money, Jim's life was not complete. Each year this conviction grew, especially around Christmas time. This year Jim packed up his trunk and came home, and now everything is well. "The joy of Christmas will mean something to me this year," says Jim Stamper.

Merry Christmas.

GOVERNMENT MACHINE STOPS FOR CHRISTMAS

White House Decked With Garland for Holiday Season.

Washington, December 24.—(AP)—Over a nation at peace with the world the Christmas spirit settled down tonight to be hailed nowhere more joyously than in its capital.

The vast machinery of the government was at a standstill and its chief executive and first lady joined with the rest of America's millions in preparations for the morrow which throughout the Christian world signifies peace, good will to man.

The thoroughfares in the business district, like the main streets from coast to coast, were thronged with minute shoppers, including Mrs. Coolidge, who for a short while today rubbed elbows scarcely unnoticed with the bundle-laden crowds.

Throng on Street.

The shopping throngs were increased by thousands of government workers who had been given the day off by a special order from President Coolidge and who, one and all, apparently turned out to complete their purchases for the holiday.

As dusk settled down, and youngsters became restless for the arrival of Santa Claus, the lights began to twinkle on Christmas trees here and there in the city—the largest tree being the one in the spacious parkway near the white house, the lighting of which was turned over to President Coolidge.

White House Decorated.

The white house itself was bedecked for the Christmas season. The windows were garlanded with wreaths while over the door of the portico on the north entrance one wreath, larger than the others, was illuminated with red, green and white lights. Inside, the huge reception hall was banked with poinsettias, their red blossoms standing out vividly against a background of green.

It looked as if Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge, who leave the white house on March 4, had put an added touch to the decorations even though they will spend but a short part of the Christmas holiday at the executive mansion as they have arranged to leave the city tomorrow for a visit to Sapelo island off the Georgia coast.

This trip, with the prospect of the president and the first lady being away on New Year's day, however, is believed to be one of the reasons for the large exodus of other government officials from the capital for the holidays.

Doubt About Reception.

While it is not certain whether the President and Mrs. Coolidge will return in time for the customary New Year's reception, many in official life who usually are present at the ceremony have left Washington. Included in the group who have returned to their homes to spend Christmas are a number of cabinet officers and many members of the senate and house.

In the capital's Christmas eve program two events held the center of attention—the lighting of the community Christmas tree by the president and the traditional singing of old Christmas carols on the north lawn of the white house by the choir of the president's church.

For the former, a program of Christmas music had been arranged with the marine band playing a number of selections, and choral music by the National Capital Oratorio association. A Boy and a Girl Scout had been delegated, moreover, to convey the Christmas greetings of the city to Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge.

The carol service on the white house lawn has become a traditional Yuletide event, attended by large numbers of Washingtonians. The program included Christmas songs and in addition a special selection written by Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the First Congregational church, which the president attends.

Dr. Pierce had dedicated the selection to Mrs. Coolidge.

Leave for Georgia.

Tomorrow, the presidential party is scheduled to leave by special train for Sapelo island some time after noon.

Resides Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge it will include the president's military and naval aides, Colonel Osborn L. L. L. and Captain Wilson Brown, Colonel James F. Coughlin, the white house physician; Mrs. Coolidge's stenographer, E. C. Banta, and a corps of newspaper correspondents and photographers.

Frank O. Salisbury, a British artist, also will accompany the party. He has been commissioned by the New York Genealogical and Biographical society to paint a portrait of the president to be hung in the organization's new home in New York city.

Mr. Salisbury recently did a portrait of King George of England. The president will sit for the British painter during his stay in Georgia.

The party expects to reach Brunswick, Ga., Wednesday morning, where Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge will be met by their host, Howard E. Cline. From there they will go by automobile and boat to Sapelo island. No definite time has been set for the return trip.

uses a cup of SUGAR in boiling ham

A famous cook gives his recipe

A MAN, famous among his friends for his fine cooking, was asked the secret of his delicious boiled ham. He gave this simple recipe: Put a cupful of sugar in the water that boils an average size ham. Also one-half cup of vinegar. Try this and see how much it improves the taste and flavor of the ham.

Every good cook knows that there is no substitute for sugar in improving the enjoyment of other foods. Whether in preparing fresh vegetables, fruits or meats, sugar is the secret of successful cookery.

Sweetness is nature's perfect flavor. It is also the cheapest nutrient that you can buy.

Health comes from eating good foods, flavored to please the taste. Beware of extreme reducing diets. They are dangerous. Eminent medical authorities warn us that permanent injury often results from starvation diets.

Be sure that you and your children are properly nourished. Eat enough of varied foods, sweetened for enjoyment. The Sugar Institute.

Atlanta Wishes World 'Merry Christmas'

Merry Christmas

耶蘇聖誕紀念
CHINESE

BY CARY WILMER.

If, by any chance, you are greeted this merry morn with something that sounds like "Fähliche Weihnacht," "Buon Natale," "Hawi Idchoon Brecha," "Eyd Mubarek," "Kul Am Vi Entoon Salyoon," "Shnorhavor Sourp Zeanout," "Bayramegez Kayeler Olson," "Joyous Noel," "Felicis Navidades," "Eth Pola," "Beyram Mobarak Mebasad," "God Yul," or "Hauksaa Joulaa," you are not having audible D. T.'s and the person addressing you is not absolutely crazy, in fact, you are merely being wished a merry Christmas in the following respective languages: German, Italian, Syrian, Armenian, Persian, Greek, Persian, Swedish and Finnish. Any other peculiar sounds may be attributed to the Chinese, Japanese and Korean expressions for the same which have not been transposed into English characters here.

Perhaps you will not run across any of these greetings today, but it is not impossible, since there are people right here in the city of Atlanta fully capable of expressing the season's greetings just as reproduced above. All were collected with the help of people living in Atlanta who have congregated here from all quarters of the globe.

Thus it is that Christmas and the spirit of Christmas have invaded every corner of the globe in some shape or fashion and not a one of the countries represented fail to observe the great Christian holiday in some manner and there is hardly a language that doesn't have the equivalent of the good old American expression, "Merry Christmas." This is one great holiday which seems, at least, to be practically universal.

From Sunny Italy.

In sunny Italy, where the words "Buon Natale" are on everyone's lips today, we find customs a little unusual to the American viewpoint, according to Signor C. Attilio Bollati, the royal Italian consul to Atlanta. He states that in northern Italy gifts are presented to the children only, while the adults have to be content with a specially large feast. A certain kind of cake is always served at this time, which resembles our American fruit cake. The Italians call it "panettone" or "big bread."

It is in the central and southern parts, however, that one finds the most novel customs. In Rome there is fasting on Christmas eve, followed by special church services and then feasting on Christmas. The children, to relate, have little over a week to wait for their presents. These arrive January 6 and are brought, not by Santa Claus, but by his female counterpart, an old woman, who brings toys to the good little boys and girls and punishes the bad ones with gifts of ashes and similar unpleasant things. She might be Mrs. Santa Claus or even that elusive dame, "Mary Christmas" herself, who knows?

In icy Finland.

To jump from this sunny clime to icy Finland, we find still more unusual customs. This information was given by Miss Gerda Matson, a native of Finland, who has been in this country 16 years and is now a resident of Atlanta. She contributed the Swedish and Finnish greetings contained in the opening paragraph.

In her native country, most of the festivities of the season are completed Christmas eve. At this time everyone goes to church, leaving one member of the family at home to fix the tree and to arrange the presents. After the services, these are distributed and then everyone assembles for the Christmas feast. One of the principal dishes is a special kind of fish, but fish, they call it and there is also a generous portion of special cooked rice. This contains one almond and the one finding this is to be married first, so their custom says. Christmas day itself is given over to solemn religious ceremonies and is not celebrated in such a boisterous manner as in these United States.

Christmas eve is also the time for distribution of gifts in Germany, we were informed by Dr. Rolf L. Jaeger, the German consul to Atlanta. He states that there is a Christmas tree in every home from the poorest hovels to the most magnificent mansions and that the distribution of gifts is strictly a family affair. After the father of the family lights the tree, everyone joins in some Christmas songs and this is followed by an appropriate recital. Then there are gifts for all. The "Christ Kind" or Christ child, brings the remembrances for the little tots while their elders exchange presents among themselves as we do here. For the next two days everybody enjoys a holiday.

Yule in Near East.

The task of collecting "Merry Christmas" in 16 languages was made considerably lighter by the fact that one man was responsible for no less than four of them. The man is Gregorie Gernazian and his contributions

Here, too, it is a great holiday.

The Persian and Syrian expressions are the contribution of Y. H. Shabaz, a Persian by birth who has been in this country 35 years and in Atlanta visiting. Here, too, it is a great holiday.

He is a graduate of Colgate college and was a missionary in Persia for 17 years. As for Christmas celebrations in his native country, Mr. Shabaz states everything in this line is done by the Christian residents, the country itself being Mohammedan.

"Merry Christmas" in Japanese and Korean is the work of Y. H. Kim, a native of Korea who is studying at Emory university. In both of these countries, he states, Christmas is a great national holiday and celebrated much as in this country.

Chinese Celebrate.

The same applies to China, according to Dr. T. Y. Young, a native of that country who has been in the United States 18 years. In recent years, at any rate, he states, Santa Claus comes to see all the good little Chinese boys and girls and Christmas trees are found in many homes as in America.

"Felicis Navidades," the Spanish greeting of the day, was supplied by A. Leal, a Mexican by birth, now residing in Atlanta. In Spain and Mexico, as in all Catholic countries, he states, the day is featured by special church services and is a great feast day.

Thus on this day of days, it would be possible to find people in dozens of different countries celebrating the great Christian holiday in some manner, and one can begin to grasp the meaning of the words of a man convicted of murder who said that he did not believe in Christmas either historically or in the church way, but who concluded by saying:

"Christmas is dear to the heart of every man."

PLAN OPERATION TO REMOVE TOY FROM BOY'S THROAT

Cincinnati, December 24.—(AP)—With Frank Brooks, 18 months old, Asco, W. Va., baby in a "much improved" condition, officials at the hospital where the boy is confined, today said the resumption of an attempt to remove a toy from his throat would depend entirely on the lad's condition.

The child was brought here Friday night from Bluefield, W. Va., where physicians said a throat specialist would be needed to remove the toy motorcycle with a tiny man on it which the child swallowed a week ago Saturday. The toy came in a box of popcorn the child had been given.

Physicians said the child apparently had little difficulty in breathing, but it was impossible for him to eat. The only nourishment he has had since he swallowed the toy is small amounts of milk given through a tube.

While the child remained in a serious condition, physicians apparently felt there was a good chance of performing a successful operation to save the boy's life.

SANTA CLAUS VISITS EVERGLADES SURVIVORS

1,200 Children Made Merry Over Hurricane-Ravaged Paths.

West Palm Beach, Fla., December 24.—(AP)—Over the hurricane ravaged paths of the Everglades Santa Claus came tonight to more than 1,200 children, most of them survivors of the September catastrophe.

Thus the thousands who contributed funds to the Florida hurricane relief funds to spread an exquisite joy that they had not counted on when their donations were made in response to the first urgent appeals for aid.

By automobile, by truck and by boat Santa Claus hauled his pack into the brooding quietness of the glades where the wreckage of homes still lies strewn about the reconstructed houses. By the kindness of the American people, he will remain tomorrow to provide a regulation Christmas dinner for everyone in need.

Yuletide trees blazed at Belle Glade and South Bay where a stupendous toll of life was taken when the hurricane swept the waters of Lake Okechobee over the towns. Other communities had trees and there were gifts for all, mostly practical gifts. There were some knockknacks for the tiny tots, as well as toys.

The National Junior Red Cross sponsored the Christmas program for the storm-stricken and disaster relief workers, joined by citizens and volunteer helpers played in the role of Santa. Through the now placid waters of the great Lake Okechobee a boat ploughed its way into bare beach where Santa Claus had the names of 43 children on his list.

Some whom Santa had visited last year in happy homes tonight were found in tents, open to soft tropical airs, but still a place where Santa would be certain to find.

The Salvation Army and the Victory association joined the Red Cross in the program of general Christmas relief which will not end until tomorrow following the dinner.

Gifts provided by the Red Cross for the children were made up into individual "packages." Each package contained some useful, practical articles and candy and nuts. The name of each child was written on a slip so that none should lose their faith in the old-fashioned Santa Claus.

SANTA CLAUS VISITS EVERGLADES SURVIVORS

1,200 Children Made Merry Over Hurricane-Ravaged Paths.

West Palm Beach, Fla., December 24.—(AP)—Over the hurricane ravaged paths of the Everglades Santa Claus came tonight to more than 1,200 children, most of them survivors of the September catastrophe.

Thus the thousands who contributed funds to the Florida hurricane relief funds to spread an exquisite joy that they had not counted on when their donations were made in response to the first urgent appeals for aid.

By automobile, by truck and by boat Santa Claus hauled his pack into the brooding quietness of the glades where the wreckage of homes still lies strewn about the reconstructed houses. By the kindness of the American people, he will remain tomorrow to provide a regulation Christmas dinner for everyone in need.

Yuletide trees blazed at Belle Glade and South Bay where a stupendous toll of life was taken when the hurricane swept the waters of Lake Okechobee over the towns. Other communities had trees and there were gifts for all, mostly practical gifts. There were some knockknacks for the tiny tots, as well as toys.

CITY IS RESTRAINED FROM CLOSING HOME

Temporary Order Granted in Favor of Volunteers of America.

Upon the petition of Louis Burton, counsel for the Volunteers of America, Judge John D. Humphries, on the bench of the Fulton county superior court, Monday morning issued a temporary restraining order enjoining the city from closing the home of the Volunteers. The writ enjoined the city from interfering with the work of the society, as was ordered by city council on December 21, and ordered representatives of that body to appear before the motion division of the court on January 5 to show cause why the closing order should then be put into force.

The petition, upon which the order was granted, alleged that the cause upon which the councilmanic action had been taken had been invalidated by the action of the national headquarters of the Volunteers of America in removing the heads of the Atlanta society.

On December 7, it was stated, the then heads of the local organization were removed and Paul Mason was placed in charge of the organization.

Inasmuch as the city's order was predicated upon an objection to certain of the society's leaders here, the petition maintained that these objections had been automatically removed by the naming of new heads and the cause for the closing order therefore was automatically removed.

JULIUS KUHN, NOTED PHOTOGRAPHER, DIES

Julius H. Kuhn, 76, one of Atlanta's oldest photographers and one of the oldest members of the Moore Memorial Presbyterian church died Monday afternoon at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. H. Sprinkle, in College Park.

Mr. Kuhn came to Atlanta as a boy and soon thereafter established himself as a photographer, following this trade until about four years ago when he was forced to retire because of his advanced age. He joined the Moore Memorial church shortly after its founding and was active as an elder in its work until recently. He had made his home with Mrs. Sprinkle since the death of Mrs. Kuhn, about 16 years ago.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

HEARST SETTLES HALL-MILLS LIBEL OUTSIDE COURT

New Brunswick, N. J., December 24.—(AP)—Timothy Pfeiffer, counsel for Mrs. Francis Hall, her brother William Stevens and her cousin, Henry Carpenter, announced today that his clients' $1,500,000 libel action against William Randolph Hearst and the Hearst publications had been settled out of court.

Mrs. Hall, her brother and cousin brought suit after the trial in which Mrs. Hall and two brothers were charged with the murder of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall, Mrs. Hall's husband, and Mrs. Eleanor Mills.

NOTED YALE GLEE CLUB TO SING HERE TONIGHT

College Spirit Will Pervade
Concert at Woman's Club.

The famous Yale Glee club will be presented in concert by the Yale Alumni, at the Atlanta Woman's club auditorium 8:30 o'clock tonight. These internationally famed singers arrived Monday afternoon from New Haven on special train equipment, consisting of a large size sleeping car private car, "The Princess," and baggage car. The club lives on these cars, sleeping as it moves from city to city, rather than staying overnight at any one city. Meals are served in the private car. Traveling in this manner the club has given concerts in Plainfield, N. J., Washington, D. C., and Pinehurst, N. C.

The Christmas trip also includes Memphis, Louisville, Little Rock, Dayton, closing with the concert in Pittsburgh, when they will disband for the rest of the holidays until the opening of college on January 8. The Yale Glee club is often referred to as the ambassadors of good will. The concert in Atlanta is attracting forces of both Yale and Georgia men because of the acceptance of the Yale football team to open the new bowl of the University of Georgia next fall.

The program to be given tonight is sparkling with the spirit of college songs, as well as the classical and semi-classical numbers. Tickets will be on sale at the door one hour before the concert.

Choir leader in the Hall church, in 1922.

The alleged libel was committed during the course of the trial, which ended with the freeing of all defendants. Pfeiffer did not divulge the amount of the payment made in settlement.

Mail and Passenger Plane in Fatal Crash

CRASH OF PLANE NEAR CHATTANOOGA MAY CAUSE CHANGE

Chattanooga, Tenn., December 24.—(AP)—Abandonment of passenger service for the time being and a demand for a new air field are expected to be the immediate results of an air mail crash here Sunday morning in which four persons lost their lives.

Officials at the field today said the passenger service would be dispensed with for the present, but declined to permit use of their names in connection with the statement. The field should be moved five or six miles further from the city to the foot of Missionary ridge, they said.

The present field is in a hollow where mists collect, it was said, and where the air is bad for flying. Investigation of Sunday's crash, in which W. M. Rozar, a salesman of Mon. Ga., and Chicago, was the sole survivor, was held up today pending arrival of Major Earl Ward, operating manager of the Interstate Air Lines, owners of the plane, and representatives of the federal aviation inspection service. George Myers, chief pilot and division engineer of the company, and Farr Nutter, manager of Marr field, where the accident occurred, made a preliminary survey of the wreck yesterday and announced they thought the crash was caused by motor trouble.

The plane was completely destroyed by fire which followed the crash. Those killed were Charles H. Shield, Louisville, pilot; C. P. Mayer, St. Elmo; G. L. Burnett, Chicago; and Raymond D. Harris, pilot for Interstate lines between Chicago and Louisville, who was riding as a passenger.

HOOVER WILL SPEND CHRISTMAS ON SEA

U. S. S. Utah, December 24.—(AP)—A quiet Christmas eve was celebrated tonight by Herbert Hoover on his homeward journey through tropical seas on board the battleship Utah, whose radio all day brought greetings of the season from relatives and friends in the United States.

Although the president-elect and Mrs. Hoover during their life have celebrated the Yuletide in many foreign lands and once at sea en route to China, an unique experience is the store for them tomorrow—Christmas day—on a United States battleship steaming across the equator.

Homeward bound, after an enthusiastic reception at Rio de Janeiro which climaxed his Latin American good will tour, the president-elect felt much gratified over the result. He is especially pleased over the fact that all appraisals and analyses of his trip which have come to him characterized his visit to the Central and South American countries as a real and pronounced accomplishment towards good will and understanding and closer friendship in the relations of the Latin American republics and the United States.

Members of the Hoover party pointed out that Mr. Hoover had brought a Christmas gift of "peace and goodwill" to the western hemisphere and that his tour was one of the most extensive efforts of history in applying the principle of friendly personal contact between chief executives of nations. Besides Christmas greetings the radio today brought Mr. Hoover many felicitations from South American countries on his good will trip.

A torrid sun and clear skies was the Christmas eve weather as the battleship steamed toward the equator from Rio de Janeiro about 100 miles off the Brazilian coast. The Utah averaged about 14 knots an hour over a smooth sea in today's voyage.

But a strong breeze alleviated the tropical heat and Mrs. Hoover and other members of their party were able to rest comfortably on the quarterdeck. An awning stretched over the deck sheltered them from the sun.

Mrs. Hoover devoted part of the day to sorting and arranging the day of flowers sent aboard to her at Rio by officials of the Brazilian government and a number of American residents of the Brazilian capital. She also made final preparations for the Christmas day celebration which will include a dinner to the Hoover party and ship's officers.

Plans No Filibuster On War Treaty, Declares Moses

Concord, N. H., December 24.—(AP) Senator George H. Moses, at his home here for the Christmas holidays, expressed the opinion today that the senate would act upon both the Kellogg-Brand treaty and the naval construction bill by the first of February. He said no filibuster was contemplated by the supporters of his resolution of interpretation of the treaty and he believed the country as a whole wanted the treaty ratified and the naval bill approved.

LONGER VISITING HOURS

Grady Hospital Is Thrown
Open From 11 to 4 Daily.

Visiting hours at Grady hospital will be extended on Christmas day so that relatives and friends may be with the patients for longer periods than usual.

Instead of the regular brief visiting privileges, all patients, except those whose condition is too serious to warrant the extension, may receive visitors from 11 o'clock in the morning until 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 o'clock to 8 o'clock at night. Superintendent Steve H. Johnston

Success of 'Living Tree' Move PRESIDENT THANKS THOSE WHO COOPERATED Gratifying to Camp Fire Girls

The unprecedented success of the Camp Fire Girls and The Constitution "Light the Living Tree" movement to add cheer to the Yuletide season Monday drew from Mrs. Tom Brooke, president of the Camp Fire Girls of Atlanta, a letter of appreciation to all of those who aided in the movement.

Mrs. Brooke's letter follows: "Greetings to the Participants of the Lighting of the Living Christmas Trees:

"It is with the feeling of pride and happiness that the Camp Fire Girls of Atlanta have seen their idea of the lighting of the living Christmas tree grow from a small beginning four years ago to the grand success it is this year.

"For the last two years the Camp Fire Girls all over the country have planted thousands of trees, and the local organization felt that the lighting of the living tree at Christmas time fitted well into the national project.

"The Atlanta Constitution thought well of the idea of lighting the living Christmas tree and it was largely due to the wonderful publicity given to the campaign by the Christmas tree editor of The Constitution that it has spread over the city and into the state. We are deeply grateful to The Constitution for their cooperation in making the lighting of the living trees such a widespread success.

"In the name of the Camp Fire Girls and the local Camp Fire council I wish to thank all the civic leagues of the city in joining with The Constitution and Camp Fire in sponsoring the lighting of the living trees. It gives me great pleasure to thank the individuals who have helped us to make our city a place of beauty and typifying peace on earth and good will to men.

"MRS. TOM BROOKE,
President Atlanta Camp Fire Council."

Santa Makes Annual Visit AGED MOTHER OBSERVES QUEER RITUAL To Lonely Grave of Boy

BY RALPH T. JONES.

HERE is an old lady, who lives in a big hotel. She is alone in the world. Her relatives and friends have all gone on, and she can't make anything of it. She stands the tree by the foot of the grave.

From the second package she takes a boy's toy. Some years it is a toy engine and train of cars. Or, perhaps, a box of tin soldiers and a drum. Or a bat and ball or baseball mitt. Small size, of course, suitable for a boy of seven.

This year it is a velocipede. She places it on the ground, beside the tiny Christmas tree.

She stoops still further over the little mound. Softly her lips kiss the kindly earth.

"Merry Christmas, Jamie," she whispers, as she rises and goes. The keeper of the cemetery told me he gave away the toys each year to different boys in his neighborhood who hadn't been remembered too well by Santa.

The first year I saw her, I left the toy on the grave, he told me. "She came back two days later and was heartbroken. She said 'Jamie' must not have liked the gift, or else he'd have taken it. Since then I always move them as soon as she leaves and, when she finds them gone, later, she smiles and is pleased."

Building Permits Here Win Place On 'Honor Roll'

Atlanta occupied a place on the "honor roll" in the November list of building permit records for 204 cities, by nearly doubling the permit valuation of November, 1927, according to the F. W. Dodge corporation.

A total of 341 building permits had a valuation of $1,791,000 during the past November, against 338 permits with a valuation of $909,600 for November of last year, the Dodge company's report shows.

Other cities included in the honor roll for November were Long Beach, Cal.; Washington, D. C.; Evanston, Ill.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Detroit, Mich.; Kansas City, Mo.; Atlantic City, Jersey City, Youngstown, Memphis, Houston, San Antonio, Richmond, Va., and Milwaukee.

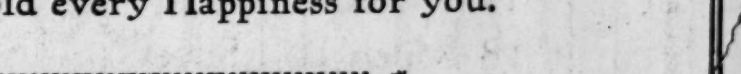

Atlanta's building permits for the first 11 months of 1928 practically doubled those for the same period of 1927, the report shows. The first 11 months of 1928 showed a total of $20,116,700 against only $11,356,409 for the same number of months of 1927.

A special Christmas dinner will be served to all patients whose condition does not require a special diet.

Mothers---Try Mild Children's Musterole

Of course, you know good old Musterole; how quickly, how easily it relieves chest colds, sore throat, rheumatic and neuralgic pain, sore joints and muscles, stiff neck and lumbago.

We also want you to know CHILDREN'S MUSTEROLE—Musterole in milder form. Unexcelled for relief of croupy coughs and colds; it penetrates, soothes and relieves without the blister of the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Keep a jar handy. It comes ready to apply instantly, without fuss or bother.

Better than a mustard plaster

CHRISTMAS!

The Constitution extends greetings to all its friends, and the sincere wish that each may have a happy and well-spent Christmas, and that health and prosperity may be the New Year's portion.

Every economist in the country forecasts unusually prosperous economic conditions in 1929.

The markets are more stabilized than they have been in several months. There is a general disposition for a restoration of sanity in speculative trading.

Industrial corporations generally are in splendid financial conditions. Millions of dollars in Christmas bonuses have been placed in circulation, and ten of millions of cash dividends will go into circulation during January.

In agriculture, where general economic conditions have been and are more acute, there is encouraging promise ahead. Leaders in governmental affairs are practically unanimous in the conviction that an extra session of congress, to be convened probably in April, will enact legislation for surplus control, and for a revision of the credit laws.

In the south the situation is not merely good, but excellent. The eyes of the nation are turned in this direction, and investment capital is preparing to pour in as never before. There is a uniform strengthening of land values, and certainly there could not be a more significant trend.

In Atlanta, the center of commerce, finance, transportation, distribution, education and culture, the year will end with a new high mark in building activities, with a spirit of optimism that is characteristic of the true "Atlanta spirit."

Every day must not be one of sunshine, or we would fail to appreciate the sunshine when the clouds lowered. But with the days of storm and of illness and of agricultural depression in spots, the great section south of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi, is the most prosperous on the American continent.

With Christmas good-will we have real reasons for Christmas rejoicings.

THE BETTER METHOD.

Mrs. Lillian W. Moore, of Atlanta, calls attention to a condition existing not only in Atlanta, but throughout the country, that offers food for serious study at Christmas time.

She deprecates the evidences of the lack of moral restraint among the young, and wants to know what has become of the old time influence of the Sunday schools, the Good Templars, the prayer meetings and the other moral forces that directed the mind of the young to the path of righteousness by appeal to the better instinct.

It is a question that confronts the civilization of the whole country, with the view of applying the remedy.

The chief trouble now seems to arise out of the fact that instead of moral suasion the forces that formerly operated to train the youthful mind into the channel of correct living are not as active as they once were.

They have been too quick to content themselves with the idea that "the law" controls, and that the law having stepped in to do the work that was once done by them, there is no need of their further activity.

Such a policy is having a disastrous effect.

Old-time Atlantans will recall the days of the Good Templars, with Uncle John Throver as the moving power of the organization.

With Atlanta half the size as now, ten thousand children were enrolled under its banner, all taking the oath of abstinence, and all impressed, by appeals to their mind and conscience, with the insidious danger of alcohol.

And so with the Sunday schools and the weekly prayer meetings—now fading, as compared with their oldtime activities.

"It is the law"—so the modern reformer says, and he leaves to Uncle Sam to do much of that which was once much better done by the moral forces that have now gone to sleep in the false belief that they are no longer needed to do the things that the law should do—even if it is helpless in its effort.

And so we say, in commending the good purpose of Mrs. Moore, that the remedy is not so much in the law, as in a return to the old-time practice when the youth was taught at the fireside, at the Sunday school, and at the weekly gathering of the Good Templar lodges, that the vice of intemperance can best be warded off by appeal to the conscience and the mind, and that such method of appeal was far more effective than by simply placarding before the youthful eye the mandate that "the law" says "thou shalt not."

When will we get back to those good old days when those who believe in right living, and especially in training our children to that end, will not content themselves with saying "That is the law—let Uncle Sam enforce it"—but will resume the practice of the last generation in the effort to teach the growing one that moral force is more effective than the simple "thou shalt not" of law?

At least the former should be back of the latter, for without it no law is effective.

THE WORLD REJOICES.

There will be general rejoicing throughout the world this Christmas morning that the King of England, who has made a desperate fight for more than a month against malignant disease, has passed the danger mark, and is on the road to recovery.

King George, and all the members of his royal household, are close to the people.

It is not only a family in which deep and consecrated spirituality reigns, but the monarch represents the highest type of constitutional democracy.

There is nothing snobbish about any of the members of the king's family. The queen devotes most of her time to welfare and charity work, entering wholeheartedly into such splendid service as those of the people in whose veins there is no royal blood.

The heir to the throne, Prince Albert, now a full-fledged man of 32 years of age, is a democrat in the truest sense of the word. He mingles with the populace, in the finer sports, and in civic and club and social life, with the ease and freedom of any useful young citizen of good habits and serviceable purposes.

The devotion between Prince Albert and his father is proverbial. They have been companions and chums for many years. He is not hoping for an elevation to the throne.

And so on this good day of cheer and good will the people of all nations—the common people—turn their thoughts to Buckingham Palace with every good wish that the king may have many years before him.

That locomotive which jumped the track in a North Carolina town and ran into a drug store must have thought the drug store carried something for a railroad's system.

Most criminals go to the death chair "dying game," as the reporters put it. Why the heroics? If they had lived game they wouldn't have to steel themselves to die game.

Mr. Ford said he met Rockefeller but once but "when he saw that face I knew what made Standard Oil." And we also know what made Mr. Ford—the automobile.

Neither Bolivia or Paraguay has a standing army, so it will have to be a toss-up to determine who will get our marines.

Thousands of actors are out of employment in New York and many theaters closed for a lack of patronage. Our heart goes out to the ticket scalpers!

Among other things the airplane has brought us the past twenty-five years is the application of the word "minedness."

A paper at Danville, Ill., is being printed on corn-stalk news print. If the farmer feeds his paper to his cows the publisher will not only be obliged to entertain his subscribers but make the cows content.

The 5,000 bills introduced into the house at the present session are new bills, but those introduced into our house are ones that we have seen before.

If you cast your eyes into the southern sky these days you'll understand why the expression "Great Jupiter" is so popular.

Five hundred chorines out of a job in New York will now learn how to reduce.

Down in Florida the go-getters are being supplanted by the come-backers.

CHRISTMAS In Bethlehem

Aged Priest of The Church of The Nativity Tells Pierre Van Paassen of The New Hope for Peace on Earth.

(Editor's Note—In answer to a request by Pierre Van Paassen, The Constitution's special correspondent in Europe, the following article was written by a man of 94 years of age, who is one of the priestly guardians of the Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem, the sacred shrine of Christendom, which rises on the spot where Christ was born.)

By Rev. Fr. GIULIO BRISINO, F. O. Translated from the Italian by PIERRE VAN PAASEN.

Bethlehem, Judea, December 5.—When we ring the bells on Christmas morning in this serene and tranquil nook of the world and we hear their silver voices float away over hills and fields, we know that others take up their message and carry it over seas and oceans to New York, Atlanta, San Francisco and the ends of the earth.

And each year again we feel a pang of solicitude and anguish whether the message will be understood if it will be peace on earth that shall be ushered in or whether man shall go hating his brother and arming against him. Let the radiance of the sun shine on the earth, but there is a new hope. Man seems to have come to realize that the angels' hymn, sung 2,000 years ago near this village, holds the only salvation for him and for our civilization.

And our special hope in this hidden corner of the earth is America. Even here we know of America's magnitude and fabulous power. Incredible stories have reached us of wealth and strength and grandeur. To us, will not hide the fact that the angels' hymn, sung 2,000 years ago near this village, holds the only salvation for him and for our civilization.

Blessed Christmastide and Prosperous New Year for Atlanta, Is the Wish Of Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Noted Divine

Dear Readers of The Constitution:

I recall with gratitude the friends I am happy to possess in your beautiful city and its surrounding territories. There I was privileged to address the faculty and graduating class of Emory university and the faculties and scholars of other well known educational institutions. There I was elected in December, 1924, to the presidency of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, an office in which I have lately been succeeded by the Rev. Dr. Francis John McConnell, Bishop of the New York area of the Methodist Episcopal church.

There through the courtesy of The Constitution I have been permitted to communicate with its readers, and it is to me of less importance to us all. It is any wonder, then, that I should have you in my remembrances and prayers, or wish you with all sincerity and earnestness a blessed Christmastide and a prosperous New Year?

I often visualize Atlanta as a kind of dream city, in which the fairest hopes and the spiritual ambition of men are being slowly but surely realized. Nor do I doubt that the quenchless soul of the south will take from your inspiration and guidance a wise impetus in needed directions. Certainly this Holy Season should find us prepared to say:

"Lord, make my heart Thy inn!
Wide open door;
Clean rushes on the floor;
Each lamp well trimmed and bright;
My table set for Thee on Christmas night.
No manger now awaits, if Thou wilt come
To grace this home!
All, all is Thine,
O Guest divine!
Lord, enter in!"

When He thus appears our dawning has begun. He is indeed Atlanta's bright morning star and also its rising sun.

In the interest of Christmas as God ordains I plead for the poor, the helpless, the sad, the afflicted, and especially for the unprivileged children. Let the radiance of your beautiful homes be the more blessed because it shines on them.

Of course I know your disposition. It is generous to a fault. Through its manifestations of mutual good will the mediæval chivalry of your honored ancestors finds fresh vent.

Nor should it be confined to Atlanta, or even to the historic commonwealth of which Atlanta is the metropolitan center. The genius of a nation-wide brotherhood is sorely needed in our republic. Its solidarity, its virtuous purposes, its integrity before all men depend on our oneness in soul. We may differ as to methods, but there ought to be no difference as to objects. These are ever before us by Heaven's decree. To love God supremely and the brotherhood for Christ's sake is the indubitable sign of our Christmas vitality. From this day of days that love should permeate our thoughts, words and deeds throughout the entire Christian year.

Moreover, it must assume practical forms. The nation we cherish has suffered a weary and wounded world the peace pact which carries on the splendid policy of the late President Wilson. May we not rally to it, one and all, demand its unqualified ratification by the senate of the United States, and then offer it to mankind as America's contribution to its aggregate welfare?

I close with reluctance and because I have already trespassed on your patience and space allotted to me. God bless The Constitution, every other private or public instrumentality of your constituency, and every resident of Atlanta!

S. Parkes Cadman
Radio Minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America.

Santa Will Not Forget, Is Message Of Dr. Dean to Constitution Readers

To Those Whom Santa Claus Has Forgotten:

Perhaps your chimney is closed up. No one can get the fine things of faith if he has stealed himself against any gifts of the gods.

Possibly you didn't hang up your stockings. A visitor to our heart who would be friendly must have a host who meets him half way.

Maybe the roads are in such terrible shape that no Santa Claus would venture a trip. If we would receive messengers of good will the pathways to the heart would be cleared of sourness on life and bitterness of heart.

Very likely you were not at home when Santa Claus sent his advanced agents or if you were home the door was forbiddingly barred. The Great Visitor, for which we pray or dream or plead, comes only once in a while. It's the little visits—those which are of no account, so we think—that pave the way for the great visit.

Great visit. Daily gift of ourselves makes the great gift come to us. Daily health makes for great health, daily study builds great knowledge, daily prayer brings the great answer.

We all live, work and think towards some great visit coming into our lives. The adolescent maiden who dreams of her fairy prince, the boy with aspirations for greatness, the sick with only wishes for health, the wife with prayers that love may return, the father with hopes for success on his lips, the teacher striving for advanced credit—each and all praying, striving, studying or dreaming for the day when some great visitor will make them wiser or happier or healthier or more successful.

But He Will Not Forget.

Today one great visitor is here. Santa Claus is his name. We see him best in the faces of little ones and in the faces of those who have labored that childhood may have its dreams and fancies. We feel his presence when the heart's desire is answered by the appropriate gift. We believe in him in the proportion to which we have helped others to believe.

To my old friends of The Constitution I extend my best wishes that your Christmas visitor will bring gifts in abundance. May little folks be especially favored with joys and toys, and young people with deepening appreciation of love and life, and we who are older retain youthfulness of mind and soul—if not of body!

Please, dear Santa Claus, give my Conversation Corner children gifts of things and to my adult readers gifts of the spirit. You may spare me but forget me you cannot because you, in giving to my readers, have already given to me.

Your friend,
ARTHUR DEAN.

A Growing Evil Discussed By an Atlanta Woman—What Is the Remedy?

Editor Constitution: So much is being said and written about the present day evils and especially Atlanta is coming into her share of criticism. These conditions are recognized by all, but Atlanta is really no worse than other cities of same size and conditions. In many respects she is at the top in numerous splendid achievements. What we need now is a remedy for what ails us.

When Atlanta sins it is most noticeable, for she has always stood, as a unit, for all things noble and uplifting. This is still true. We are a city of good people as a whole. Atlanta is famed for its churches and for its countless philanthropic institutions. People who work night and day for the welfare of its people. The tendency of our young people to do the daring, to rebel against restrictions, to seem wild and irresponsible may be traced directly or indirectly to the behavior of their elders. There are our many splendid churches and their countless workers, where is the remedy for our young people—do these services?

A few are there it is true, especially in the Sunday schools. Look now at the prayer meetings and you will find the answer. Where are the fathers and mothers? Can we expect our children to do the things that we fail to do ourselves? Where is the family worship? Do we talk to our children about their souls' salvation and Christian living?

In the light of recent happenings in our city, the fathers and mothers are ring-leaders in the search for

Old Doc Brady Celebrates a New Record

Here's good cheer: to all readers of The Constitution and three good cheers for those who read my stuff.

In all my fourteen years, nearly fifteen now, in the good old Constitution, the editors, publisher and myself have never once taken to calling each other names. This is a record of which the editors and publisher may well feel proud, for I am sure there are few, if any, other papers in the country that could make the same boast.

A happy Christmas and a healthful New Year to all my Constitution friends.

IS BULK DIGNITY OR DIGNITY BULK?

If it is not unfair to the system, I wish to warn any schoolboy or school-girl who may happen to read this item, that the syllogism to the effect that things equal to the same thing are equal to each other is pretty certain to get you in Dutch if you attempt to apply it to actual life. As a theoretical proposition it may be ever so satisfactory to the geometry instructor and as clearly demonstrable by diagrams as any nomenclature can be, but it is not good when you test it with realities. For instance, theoretically you and I have the same rights of citizenship, but practically there may be enough of my kind of people to prevent your kind of people from enjoying some of these rights.

A fundamental principle of ethics and courtesy is that one must feel and manifest respect for elders. Perhaps this is going out of fashion with us; it was probably more so reverently observed in bygone times and it is probably now most characteristic of primitive or semi-civilized races.

Youth will not remember, but I dare say that once, a time when it was a clear demand of courtesy that a boy raise his hat when he met principal or teacher (male), minister, lawyer, doctor or in fact any gentleman with a peerage at the moment sober. Now youth scarcely bothers.

After all, why should youth respect age? Theoretically because age implies wisdom, but for be it from me to expect sophisticated modern youth to take this idea seriously. Actually, I think the main factor is bulk. Mere displacement certainly inspires a degree of respect, that is, up to a reasonable limit. Overstep this reasonable limit and your dignity is gone—flee—it becomes comedy.

Take General Hindenburg, in uniform or in muff. Dignity plus. Try to imagine him shriveled to the displacement of the king of Italy. Or imagine Mussolini throwing out of his chest in a meeting with the king of Belgium. Dignity is surely determined at least in part by bulk. Japan's new ambassador to the United States has plenty of dignity, though typically low in stature. How come? The man is there with the displacement which gives him a reasonable minimum below which the bulk cannot fall without the risk of becoming comical. This gives preternaturally tall or skinny men a lot of pride, and so they become an actual strain on the minds trying to preserve their dignity.

Often such unhappy folk try, as a way of escape, a pretentiousness regarding their own appearance, but with the striking of such an attitude the last vestige of dignity is sacrificed, and so the growl of severity is bittered while outwardly trying to crack a smile.

A normal man or woman ideally reaches maximum bulk at the age of 30 years, but actually lays on additional bulk up to the age of 45 years. At 45 one has the maximum attainable dignity, in other words. Thereafter remains unchanged until 70, when they begin a shrinkage of displacement, and with the shrinkage a corresponding loss of dignity, as it seems to be.

Of course bulk is not the only factor, but it is an important factor. The small boy naturally respects the big boy, unless he believes the big boy is a boob.

EXPANSION OF U. S. NAVY URGED.

BY CURTIS D. WILBUR,
Secretary of the Navy.

(Curtis Dwight Wilbur was born at Boonshower, Iowa, May 10, 1867. He graduated from the United States Naval Academy, receiving an LL.D. degree from three other universities. He served in the navy from 1888 and began practicing law at Los Angeles. He served as secretary of the California supreme court. President Coolidge appointed him secretary of the navy in 1924.)

Provision must be made for rapid and great expansion of the naval forces in the event of emergency.

This expansion must be based upon the navy reserve and upon nuclear crews withdrawn from the regular navy for units of the emergency navy. The navy may be operated in peace time with a shortage of personnel, but at a cost of either reducing the number of vessels in commission below that necessary for the varied peacetime activities of the navy and for the maintenance of a balanced fleet, or of reducing the personnel on board the individual ships below the minimum efficiency of the ships can be properly maintained.

A shortage, requiring the reduction of vessels' allowances of personnel below the point of efficiency exists during the current fiscal year, and will increase in the future unless adequate measures, as discussed hereafter, are taken to forestall it.

The present increase is due in part to the commissioning of new vessels, but in large part to the growing demand of the air navy for personnel, which has increased in five years from less than 5,000 to nearly 11,000, while the total officers and men have decreased 2,000, a net loss to the surface navy of 8,000.

The past year has been of particular note as regards aviation for the reason that it has disclosed the fruition of several years of experimentation in the development of the airplane. The year saw the placing in operation of what we believe to be satisfactory basic types in all classes, and as a result of the 1,0

COOLIDGE ARRIVES AT SEPALO WEDNESDAYPresident To Be Met at Brunswick by His Hosts.

Brunswick, Ga., December 24.—(P)—Announcement was made here Monday that President Coolidge would arrive at the Union depot by special train Wednesday morning. He will proceed by automobile to the Sea Island Yacht club, where he will board the Howard E. Coffin's yacht, the Zapala, for the trip to Sapelo island, where he will be Mr. Coffin's guest for several days.

Guarding of the railroad station has been left to the Brunswick police department, and only the reception committee will be permitted within the depot enclosure. The president's automobile will be escorted by a cordon of police and followed by another car carrying secret service men. The route to the yacht club will be decorated and parking of automobiles will be prohibited from 9 o'clock Wednesday until after the presidential car passes.

The president will be accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge, newspaper men and others.

It was said that no mapped program had been arranged for the president while he is on Sapelo. Fishing and hunting will be indulged in and it will not be necessary to make any long trips to the hunting grounds. Sapelo offers fine deer, wild turkey, pheasant and quail shooting. A trip may be made to Mr. Coffin's game preserve in Camden county, however.

Once a king of England supplied lead for the roof of the Church of Nativity. Turks at the end of the seventeenth century striped the lead to make bullets. Today a few Palestinian police under an English officer are sufficient to keep order which none dares to disturb.

Bethlehem is now a Christian city, the only one from which, a century back, the Moslems were expelled. At the feet of the mob, the Christians separating the nave from the double aisles sit the lowliest worshippers in Christendom, safe from all intrusion and free to contemplate the miracle of 1928 years ago celebrated by the mass they can scarcely see or hear, but which they nevertheless comprehend.

They do not join on the stroke of midnight the procession to the manger headed by the marvelously robed dignitaries and which includes chorists, candle-bearers and senior British officials and their families. They crouch patiently on the floor, in semi-darkness, until the chanters have lowered and their myriads of lights and the furious ringing of bells proclaim the miracle once more.

Tables to Groom.

Today will see many tables groaning with the weight of turkeys, cranberry sauce, and all of the kindred things which go to make up a real old-fashioned Christmas dinner. And, if customs prevail, tonight there will be stomach ache remedy and tomorrow turkey hash.

In her well balanced observance of the season's holidays, Atlanta has not forgotten the religious side of the program, and churches of the city, both on Christmas eve and today, pay tribute to Him who founded a religion so true and strong that it has gone completely around the world and triumphed in the dark corners of the earth.

Atlanta's churches will unite in a union sunrise service at 7:15 o'clock this morning at the Baptist tabernacle, in order to meet the desire of members of all denominations to begin the day with an hour of meditation and worship. The program will include a message stressing the true significance of Christmas, given by Dr. Plato Durham, of Emory university. Christmas hymns, a solo by Fred Barnes, and special numbers on the piano by Miss Helen Schaid.

Committee Sponsors Program.

A committee composed of G. Frank Garrison, city union president of the Baptist Young People's union; W. Paul White, city union president of the Epworth league; A. Ray Howland, city union president of the Christian Endeavor league; S. L. Lott, city union president of the Young People's Service league, and Charles E. The All Saints Episcopal church will celebrate holy communion at 8 o'clock this morning, and will have communion and special services at 11 o'clock. The Church of the Epiphany will have only communion at 11 o'clock. Special Christmas tree services were held Monday night at St. Luke's Episcopal church, with an address by the Rev. N. R. High Moor, and special music by the choir under the direction of Hugh Howland, organist and choir master. St. Luke's will celebrate communion at 9 o'clock this morning, and will have a Christmas

"The Day-Spring From on High"

BY REV. ELAM F. DEMPSEY

Text: "The day-spring from on high hath visited us."—Luke 1:78.

Two little children, hand in hand, fascinated before a window full of toys, ecstasy in their hearts—why is it?

Postmen going from door to door, laden with vari-colored packages, festooned with holly and silver ribbons, tied with threads of green and red—why is it?

Telegrams, wreathed in beautifully tinted symbols of good cheer and good will, being brought by our plucky delivery boys to many eagerly welcoming hands—why is it?

Letters, postcards and other souvenirs of esteem and of yearning love-in-absence distributed to millions of hearts and homes—why is it?

Vines and flowers, real and artificial, with red, green and yellow electric lights woven among them, and trees glowing brightly in the dark night—why is it?

In short, a whole world of love, kindly thoughts and gracious deeds, as though love were the acknowledged law of life, as it ought and will be some day—why is it?

Our text holds the answer: "The day-spring from on high hath visited us," and we observe the anniversary of that sublime event by Christmas love and cheer. (Mal. 4:2-3.)

Solemn High Mass.

Solemn high mass was sung by Father Joseph E. Moynan at the mid-night mass held at Immaculate Conception church at 12-01 o'clock Monday night. Other Christmas masses are scheduled for 7 o'clock, 9-30 o'clock and 11 o'clock this morning.

"The old-fashioned Christmas entertainment" was held Monday night at the First Christian church. The children, superintendent and members of the Southern Christian home were the guests of the church Wednesday afternoon and night at the Woman's council and the church night supper.

The Hayville Presbyterian Sunday school sponsored a Christmas pageant at the church Monday night.

Public Buildings Closed.

The city hall, state capitol, court house and federal building will be closed today. Most of the public offices were closed Monday, as the state, city, county and federal employees put in an intensive day at the downtown shops. The city hall closed Saturday afternoon until Wednesday by order of city council.

McNARY FARM RELIEF IS PRAISED BY BRAND

Washington, D. C., December 24.—(Special.)—Secretary of Agriculture Jardine today received a telegram from Congressman Charles H. Brand, of the eighth Georgia district, in which Congressman Brand expressed approval of the McNary farm relief bill now pending in congress and commended Secretary Jardine's efforts to have this measure passed at the present session of congress.

The Georgia congressman warned against the calling of an extra session of congress, and said such sessions are unsatisfactory to the business world.

The telegram of Congressman Brand is as follows:

"I heartily commend you on your public expression of an opinion that this session of congress should pass the McNary bill. The rank and file of republicans and democrats in congress heartily agree with you. Extra sessions of congress are generally unsatisfactory to the business world. Congress can easily and quickly pass the bill if administration officers strenuously insist. Senate and house leaders are unjustified in their inaction on this important bill. Mr. Hoover did not commit himself to an extra session of congress unless members of congress made an honest effort to pass farm relief legislation which they have not done and won't do unless vigorously urged to do so by the administration."

BRAND RETURNS HOME
FOR XMAS HOLIDAYS

Athens, Ga., December 24.—(Special.)—Congressman Charles H. Brand is at home for the Christmas holidays after attending the early sessions of congress. He is of the opinion that congress will reconvene immediately after the inaugural of President Hoover on March 4.

Judge Brand secured passage of his bill authorizing the expenditure of $1,000 for a marker commemorating the memory of Nancy Hart, famous patriot of the revolutionary war.

Judge Brand also introduced the following bill relative to spreading false rumors about banks:

Be it enacted by the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America in congress assembled, that section 9209 of the revised statutes of the United States be amended by adding at the end thereof the following paragraph to read as follows:

"Whoever maliciously or with intent to deceive makes, publishes, utters, repeats, or circulates any false report concerning any national bank, or any state bank, or any other financial institution, or any association or any state bank if a member of the federal reserve system, which impugns, or tends to impugn, insolvency or sound financial condition or financial embarrassment, or which may tend to cause or provoke or aid in causing or provoking a general withdrawal of deposits from such bank, or which may otherwise injure or tend to injure the business or good will of such bank, shall be fined not more than $5,000 or imprisoned for not more than five years, or both."

BIG SAVING SEEN IN RATE CHANGES

I will be required to pay only $6.80. This shows $1.11 saving under the new schedule. In considering gas rates it must be borne in mind that you are dealing with an industry that, insofar as Atlanta is concerned, is simply holding its own and is not showing the enormous growth from year to year that the consumption of electric current shows.

"The schedule of electric rates I believe to be fair not only to the consumers of electricity, but to the consumers in Georgia," he said. "Adoption by the commission of the one meter system is a forward step and is in line with the orders of progressive commissions throughout the United States. Being familiar with the numerous things that have to be considered in setting electric gas rates, I have come to the conclusion that this is just about the best schedule of rates ever adopted by the Georgia commission."

Ramspeck Gives Approval.

In obtaining his figures on the service charges, Mr. Ramspeck took the total number of consumers and multiplied this number by $1.11 the service charge for 10 amperes or less. This multiplication gave him a total of $1,577,144.

The new rate scale was approved Monday by Robert C. W. Ramspeck, city attorney of Decatur.

The new rates put us on the same basis as Atlanta, so I really think they will benefit most consumers in Decatur, the average reduction in our rates I would estimate at 20 per cent," he said.

W. B. Knight, city attorney of East Point, supported Mr. Ramspeck's position in the matter. He said he believed the service charge used in the gas and electric case appeared to be "unreasonable."

The building burned to hide the crime. The presence of the unidentified body in the ruins gave rise to numerous theories as to who it was they did not know of the presence in the house of any persons other than Mrs. Hembree and her two children. One theory advanced was that the fourth person was a robber who had invaded the home and that a fight had followed in which all had been killed or wounded so badly they could not escape.

Kinard is a small station on the Columbia, Newberry and Laurens railroad about ten miles from Clinton and midway between Greenville and Columbia.

Reports from Kinard this afternoon were that Sheriff C. L. Owens of Laurens county, had found a number of bloodstained papers which indicated that the inmates of the home had been murdered and the building fired.

The papers, it was said, looked as though some one had wiped bloodstained fingers upon them.

The tragedy occurred just over the line in Laurens county and not in Newberry county, as first reported. The home was on the Laurens side of a road forming the county line.

FOUR PERSONS BURN IN BLAZE OF HOME.

Greenville, S. C., December 24.—(P)—Four persons were burned to death early today when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the home of Mrs. Lee Hembree, near Kinard, Newberry county.

The dead were Mrs. Hembree, her two children, a son 16 years old and a year-old daughter and a fourth person who has not been identified. The bodies were charred beyond identification.

The fire was discovered by neighbors, but the building was destroyed before they could arrive. Officers called to the scene were working today on the theory that the occupants of the home may have been slain and

VANDERBILT PREPARES
TO REPAY HIS BACKERSScion of Wealthy Family To Turn Over $3,000,000 to Creditors.

New York, December 24.—(P)—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., was speeding across the west today, busy with plans for making a $3,000,000 Christmas present to persons who had lost money in his tabloid newspaper ventures.

Reconciled with his family at a visit here, after four years of estrangement that followed his advent into the publishing business, young Vanderbilt told reporters in St. Louis that his backers would be repaid the money his unsuccessful attempts had cost them.

Vanderbilt revealed that the refund would not come from the pocket of his father, General Cornelius Vanderbilt, but from inheritances and from money his family had promised him some years ago. It has now been placed in trust for the stockholders in his newspaper enterprises in Los Angeles, Miami and San Francisco.

Vanderbilt's immediate destination today was Reno, where he hoped to join his wife, the former Mrs. Mary Weir Logan, by Christmas afternoon. Soon after his financial reverses he was divorced by his first wife, Mrs. Rachel Littleton Vanderbilt.

"THERE'S the saucepan that the gruel was in!" cried Scrooge, starting off again, and frisking around the fireplace. "There's the door, by which the Ghost of Jacob Marley entered! There's the corner where the Ghost of Christmas Present sat! There's the window where I saw the wandering Spirits! It's all right, it's all true, it all happened. Ha, ha, ha!"

Really, for a man who had been out of practice for so many years, it was a splendid laugh, a most illustrious laugh. The father of a long, long line of brilliant laughs!

"I don't know what day of the month it is!" said Scrooge. "I don't know how long I've been among the Spirits. I don't know anything. I'm quite a baby. Never mind. I don't care. I'd rather be a baby. Hallo! Whoop! Hallo, here!"

He was checked in his transports by the churches ringing out the lustiest peals he had ever heard. Clash, clang, hammer, ding, dong bell. Bell, dong, ding, hammer, clang, clash! Oh, glorious, glorious!

Running to the window, he opened it, and put out his head. No fog, no mist; clear, bright, jovial, stirring, cold; cold, piping for the blood to dance to; golden sunlight; heavenly sky; sweet fresh air; merry bells. Oh, glorious. Glorious!

"What's today?" cried Scrooge, calling downward to a boy in Sunday clothes, who perhaps had loitered in to look about him.

"Eh?" returned the boy, with all his might of wonder.

"What's today, my fine fellow?" said Scrooge.

"Today!" replied the boy. "Why, CHRISTMAS DAY."

"It's Christmas Day!" said Scrooge to himself. "I haven't missed it..."

Tilden Again Tops Ranking, Says Magazine

Official Organ Declares Former World Champion To Head List in U. S.

New York, December 24.—(AP)—Strong likelihood that William T. Tilden will be ranked again as the country's No. 1 player when the United States Lawn Tennis association meets in Boston February 9, and that Samuel H. Collow, of Philadelphia, will be re-elected president of the organization is indicated in the current issue of "American Lawn Tennis."

The ranking on the basis of the 1928 season's play already has been completed although announcement will be withheld until the convention where it will be formally approved.

"It may be taken for granted," says the publication edited by S. Wallis Merriwell, "that Tilden has been included in the classic, finished place in No. 1, and that his great friend, Francis T. Hunter, with whom he won the doubles championships of the United States and England in 1927, is No. 2."

"There is also little doubt that George M. Lott is No. 3, and John W. Hennessey No. 4, and also that Miss Helen N. Wills leads the ranking of women players," the article adds.

Because of Tilden's disbarment from amateur courts by the U. S. L. T. A., it has been thought in some quarters that he might be deprived of ranking as Vincent Richards was in 1926, when he turned professional near the end of the season.

Concerning President Collow, the magazine says "it seems pretty well settled" that he will be re-elected.

"Until recently there were indications that there would be a rival candidate, a New Yorker. His candidacy appeared to be launched with high hopes of success. The latest news indicates that the opposition to Collow's reelection has died out and that he will win in a walk."

California Extending Itself To Make Tech Team Welcome

Peter Pund Declares Every One Is Courteous and Extending Best Wishes.

BY PETER PUND.
Georgia Tech Grid Captain.
Pasadena, Calif., December 24.—(Special).—There are few places in the world that can show the hospitality the southern people are noted for, and I believe Atlanta is about the most outstanding example. However, since we left Atlanta last Thursday we have been shown such warm and routing welcomes that we could not help but think of home. All along our way to the coast, wherever our train would stop, there would be a crowd of enthusiasts to wish us luck and encourage us by saying they would be listening in on the game. One old gentleman in particular said, as we stopped in Alpine, Ariz., which is about as far from a football field as any place in the world could possibly be, that "he would be listening in and he would be glad to see the football he was going to see."

Warm Welcome.

Everyone out here seems to be with us indirectly, and I have never seen an opponent receive such a warm welcome; no one can do enough for us to make our stay most enjoyable. The train was a bit late, but with Coot Watkins playing cowboy with a cap pistol, and Father Lumpkin throwing firecrackers under anyone who stayed still long enough, everyone was quite awake and showed few signs of being worn out from the long ride. As we came off the train in the Pasadena station, some of the well-known boys as Warner Mizell, "Stumpy" and "Faker" were swamped by numerous young ladies seeking signatures. Some of the bunch were very obliging and signed up for everybody whose name had appeared in print in reference to a football score and its outcome.

This pleased the young ladies very much, as running true to form, they did not know the difference.

All Turn in Early.

Everyone turned in early last night to rest up from the long ride and be ready for the regular practices and entertainment that Don Miller so obliging came ahead of us to fix up. The entertainment will be a secondary though until after the game. Everyone realizes that we will have to play a defensive game equal to that of the Notre Dame game, and that our offense will have to click as smoothly as we did in the Vanderbilt game. To get these results we have plenty of hard work to do before we get set for the game. This afternoon we started off in high and though part of the time was taken by the various photographers from Los Angeles and around, the remainder of it was used to get the stunts from our bodies which Coach Miller hid in short order.

During this work-out, many of the trailer members of the squad such as Vance, Marve, Bob Randolph, Harold Rusk and a few others felt rather sick to the atmosphere. It affected everyone to a certain extent, but we will be used to it before the first and let the university know that we are on the field.

Lecture by Alex.

Tonight a short lecture by Coach Alex in scheduled after which the boys will be loose until 10 in the morning, a bus tour through Los Angeles and other interesting points is on our schedule. From the scenery, the history, Pasadena, that was shown us this morning by our two special bus drivers we will be in for some beautiful scenes that will supplement our work at Tech very well.

Though there will be plenty of entertainment for us before and after the game, and though the photographers and supporters have encouraged us with tales of a defeat for California, everyone realizes that they have the biggest of our entire season before us.

Eastern Team New York Sun In Scrimmage Says Loughran With Veterans Is Best Champ

Ernie Nevers on Pick-Up Eleven Which Helps All Stars Get in Shape. Sammy Mandell Also Worthy of Title, Sports Writers Say in Poll.

New York, December 24.—(AP)—The best of the past and present football stars of the past and present donned uniforms today to pit experience if not teamwork against the great eastern squad which is training at Stanford for the east-west charity game at San Francisco, December 29.

The pick-up eleven which scrimmaged against Coach Andy Kerr's easterners included Ernie Nevers, former all-American fullback; Ed Walker, end; Hal McCreery, center; Fred Swan, guard; Mike Murphy, quarterback, and many others who brought fame to Stanford in earlier days.

All of the plays with which Coach Kerr hopes to snatch victory came in for a workout and the eastern team functioned smoothly throughout. While no intimation has been given as to starting backfields, the one receiving most attention is composed of Harpers, Carnegie Tech, quarterback; Weston, Boston college, and Guest, Lafayette, fullbacks; Holmer, Northwestern, fullback.

The western team coached by C. H. Hollingbery, of Washington State college, whizzed through a long practice session here today despite rainy weather. Lacking a thoroughly experienced signal caller, Hollingbery has decided to use Dan Allen, former Yale player now with the Olympic club, and "Biff" Hoffman, Stanford fullback. Two backfield combinations are being experimented with. One includes Sims, Stanford, quarterback; Cowan, Malheur college of Texas, and Cowan, Washington State, fullbacks, and Hoffman, fullback. Another features Walker, Texas Tech, quarterback; Speicher, West Coast Army, and Marcus, California, fullbacks, and Allen, fullback.

Officials for the game have been named as follows:

Referee, George Varnell, Chicago; umpire, Walter Eckersall, Chicago; field judge, Harry Bradstock, Pennsylvania; head linesman, Robert Evans, Illinois.

In the list of 10, three champions were overthrown by the consensus. Andre Routs, featherweight titleholder, running second to Bass; Mushy Callahan being succeeded by McLarnin among the junior welterweights, and the inactive Joe Dundee being crowded off the top of the welterweight division by Jackie Fields, of Los Angeles.

Sharkey rolled up the highest point total among the heavyweights, although Jack Dempsey had the most votes for first and second places.

A showing comparable to that of Loughran in impressiveness was made by Mandell, cat-like champion of the 135 pounders, as he had a longer lead over the number two man in his division than any other leader enjoyed. Joe Glick being second, but far behind.

Loughran had the next biggest margin with Leo Lomax rated as second best in the light-heavy class.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

The star of athletic glory hovered over Dixie as never before in 1928.

Three of the south's sons jumped into national and international favor while a great football team of Georgia Tech made a bid for national supremacy.

It was Robert Tyre Jones, of Atlanta, who brought again to Dixie the American amateur golfing title and who also finished as runner-up for the national open crown. The Atlanta lawyer-luncheon also served on the successful Walker cup team with his fellow townsmen, Watts Gunn, in the team matches against Great Britain.

Georgia in an all-around way led in the task of bringing wide attention to southern sports. A junior of Georgia Tech, Ed Hamm, of Lenoir, Ark., established a new world's record for the broad jump when he hit within a fraction of 26 feet at the national meet in New York. He also won the Olympic broad jump event.

Tornado Does Its Share.

The Golden Tornado of Tech swept the southern conference title, finishing the year unbeaten and untied against all opponents and winning the invitation to the classic Tournament of Roses.

William L. Stribling, the Macon pugilist, was swept into the boxing forefront as one of the outstanding challengers to Gene Tunney's vacated title. He also captured the former world record for knockouts during the year when he bowled over his 109th opponent.

Among the smaller fronts, many others were showing class in annexing titles of regional and some instances general interest.

Mrs. Marion Turpie, youthful New Orleans golfer, won for the second time the southern women's links title and indicated promise of national caliber for the future.

Bryan Grant successfully defended his southern tennis title but met a promising newcomer in Donald Cram, of Nashville, who won the southern conference title and runner-up to the Dixie amateur honor.

Aggies Best.

In basketball, the University of Mississippi, led by a whirlwind band of basket shooters in Art Phillips and Selby, marched through the southern conference tournament late in the winter.

The professional baseball honors went to Birmingham in the Southern association. Trainers in the Southern league and Asheville in the South Atlantic association. Many members of the Birmingham club were scheduled January 4. Sharkey has agreed to meet anyone in a bid January 18.

Net Training Camp.

Another sports attraction to come south was the establishing of a training camp at Augusta, Ga., for the American Davis cup tennis team. The trained there late in March for its initial contest at Mexico City.

The major league baseball clubs continued to upgrade. Gadden Elliott, of the University of North Carolina; Snider, of Auburn; Cummings, of Virginia; and others flashing fine form. Snider and Cummings both participated in the Olympics.

The winter meets at New Orleans and that spring and fall meets at Louisville, with the new year's term as the peak, drew their usual large and colorful crowds.

THEATER REVIEWS

MANDELLS PROVIDE HEADLINE PLACE AT LOEW'S CAPITOL

Crowning of the kind that brings spontaneous laughs is found in the act of William and Joe Mandell, who fill the headline spot on the new vaudeville bill which opened Monday at Loew's Capitol theater. The Mandell brothers are two of the funniest comedians seen here in months and in addition they are acrobats of marvelous ability.

They first appear in one of those burlesque acrobatic feats in which one of them gets his foot caught in the others eye. They then get down to real work and perform some really marvelous feats. Then the act of Owen McGivney, Protean artist, is offered, and come the Mandells again in one of the cleverest burlesques ever seen in Atlanta.

Mr. McGivney is a finished actor and presents a marvelous act. He plays five different roles in "Bill Sikes" and has provided lighting effects which enable the audience to see him in the wings as he makes his quick changes.

Carlton and Belle, singers and comedians, stopped the show with the skit "Old Sings Revocated and Repeated." "Paris Creations," a beautifully mounted dance act offered by a

BACKSTAGE LIFE SHOWN ON SCREEN AT RIALTO THEATER

Eddie Quillen, who can talk, sing and dance, and Lina Basquette, rump rouser and all-around entertainer, are the stars in "Show Folks," the new picture at the Rialto. All of the characters known to the theater and the cinema are brought into this picture and the audience is taken behind the scenes and shown just how life is lived there.

Eddie and Lina are the hero and heroine, respectively, and there are many, many others who win favor by their performances, many of them being new to the screen, though old to the stage.

Eddie Peabody and Timblin and Raymond are on the Vitaphone program. Peabody is a noted banjo artist and his offerings are well received. Timblin and Raymond are blackface comedians.

The program is closed with a Christmas feature, "There Is a Santa Claus," a beautiful story in dialogue.

"KING OF KINGS" IN RETURN SHOWING AT LOEW'S GRAND

The massive and colorful production, "The King of Kings," opened a return engagement at Loew's Grand theater Monday and proved to be as highly entertaining as a week's engagement at the Metropolitan. Here is a picture that should be seen at least one time by every person able to see a show. It is a beautifully made, it is based on the life of Jesus Christ and is offered by one of the biggest casts ever assembled in a motion picture studio. Some of the scenes are of wonderful beauty, being filmed in the technicolor process. With the added effect of sound features, "The King of Kings" becomes the well-known perfect spectacle.

Start Second Half Where 1st Ended, Says Coach

Morgan's W. Va., December 24.—(AP)—Ira E. Rodgers, head coach of football at West Virginia university, is in favor of starting the second half of football games at the point where the first half ended. He said today he would advocate a rule to make the third quarter a continuation of the second period before a meeting of football coaches and athletic directors at New Orleans this week.

JIM CROWLEY WILL REMAIN AT HIS POST

Athens, Ga., December 24.—(AP)—James Crowley, former Notre Dame football star, is to remain as field coach at the University of Georgia. George C. Woodruff, former head coach of football institutions and now a member of the athletic council and chairman of the coaching committee, declared today.

3 Heavyweights Fight at Chicago

Chicago, December 24.—(AP)—Boxing in Chicago jerked up, following announcement that three contenders for the heavyweight title have been signed to box here.

Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia, world's light heavyweight champion, has signed with Paddy Harmon, matchmaker of the Chicago Stadium corporation, to meet the best heavyweight contender before March 21, when the Florida open at Jacksonville, the north and south open at Pinehurst and the Richmond open were the leading meets for the professionals.

KEITH'S GEORGIA PROGRAM PROVIDES CHRISTMAS TREAT

A real Christmas treat in theatrical entertainment is provided patrons of Keith's Georgia theater this week with the presentation of "Mother Macree," on the screen, a magnificent vehicle starring Belle Bennett, Atlanta's own actress, and a vaudeville bill featuring the "Side Kicks."

Belle Bennett, who has built herself a national reputation since she left the stock stage of Atlanta, is seen in her great picture, "Mother Macree," taken from the noted story and song. There scarcely is a human breast that will fail to respond to the powerful and dramatic appeal of "Mother Macree," the story of a soldier's life and love.

A clever and uproariously funny comedy of a soldier's life and love, "Side Kicks," featuring Jack Cameron, is the headline attraction, followed closely by Ethel Davis, famous musical comedy star, in "Refreshing Song Chatter." The Varieties Dance revue, presented capably and deftly and Ray Vaughan, a whirlwind xylophonist, closes the bill.

The program is a whole is one of the best Atlanta has seen in many weeks.

Coming to Erlanger.

The keen interest shown by Atlanta theatergoers in the forthcoming engagement of the Charles L. Wagner Producing company was made evident yesterday at the box office of the Erlanger theater by an unprecedented demand, both by mail and in person, for tickets not only for single performances but for the season as well. The Erlanger box office will remain open throughout the week from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m. for the sale of single seats as well as for season reservations. Tickets may also be had at Phillips & Crew Piano Co.

Barburi and Ball.

Eight inches or less separated Ray Barburi from Jimmy Ball, of Canada, in the Olympic 400-meter final, with Ball moving faster at the finish, but this margin was the difference between one great triumph for the U. S. A. and a complete shutout on the track at Amsterdam.

You don't hear much about Ball now but if he had started his final sprint a little earlier it would be quite another story to recall.

Columbia's great variety crew, champions of 1927, joined the runners-up in the background this year while the victors' spots went to California. Yet there was only a three-quarter length margin between the two shells after a heart-breaking, as well as record-breaking pull at Poughkeepsie. It took the fastest four miles old man river has ever seen to keep these Columbians from repeating.

Gold May Get Surprise.

The pro golf firmament may get a surprise in 1929 from young Horton Smith, the Missouri star. He was ranked fifth in the world last year and has furnished one as a paring shot for 1928 in capturing the Avalon tournament on the Pacific coast from Walter Hagen and a flock of other stars.

Smith seems headed for the main championship fight. He was 15 strokes back of Hagen and Jones at the windup of the national open at Chicago last June but he reached the semi-finals of the P. G. A. tournament later in Baltimore. He was one of Al Espinosa's victims in that event but displayed his mettle by staging a

Sports World Forgets Stars Who Just Missed Being Kings

BY ALAN J. GOULD.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, December 24.—(AP)—Before the old year runs its course, something should be said on behalf of a few of the gallant efforts that fell a trifle short of the main mark. It is the ancient custom to hail the winner. Often the runner-up was just a shade or two short of the top but he usually is consigned to oblivion nevertheless.

Golf has an exception in Bobby Jones, a headliner as winner or runner-up but can you remember Roland Hager? He came within a stroke of tying Jones and Johnny Farrell for the open championship last June at Olympia fields. In fact, the young North Carolina professional had the title in his grasp with only two holes to go, only to waver and fall short as the big crowd and the strain affected him at the same time. He finished with a brilliant 33 for the outgoing nine of 16, a record for the year. Espinosa got wild again and with 6 and 5.

Few Other Stars.

Horton Smith, Junior Coen, Franz Winkler, Red Cagle and Pavo Nurmi are a few of the stars of sport who will be closely watched as they carry the 1928 campaign over into 1929.

Missouri has a golf star to be shown in Smith, it also has a bright tennis prospect in Coen, protege of Big Bill Tilden, and perhaps the outstanding youngster developed in American tennis ranks since Vincent Richards. Much of future Davis cup hopes may be built around the slim Kansas City youth.

Wykoff was the sprint sensation at home last summer. Youth and inexperience kept him from Olympic heights but experienced coaches expect him to develop into a world's champion.

Cagle, after three great years at West Point, will be back for a last fling on the gridiron, as captain of the 1929 Army array and with an all-American reputation to uphold.

Nurmi again is the main figure on an American indoor track season after a three-year interval. The Finnish Finn returns with only one of his old rivals, Willie Ritola, apparently ready to renew the foot-racing argument. Of the runner who looked at Pavo's flying heels in his first American indoor race in 1925, Lloyd Hahn has withdrawn from competition for the winter. Joe Ray has turned pro while Jimmy Connolly and Walter Higgins are out of the picture. The four best mile runners in America couldn't keep up with Nurmi three years ago and none of them will be around to welcome him back.

Chicago To Get New Race Track

Chicago, December 24.—(AP)—Another race track for the Chicago metropolitan district was announced today. It will be erected on the north side, on the newly opened Waukegan road and will cover approximately 200 acres.

Backers of the project are A. C. Thompson, president of a large Chicago mortgage bond company, Chicago manufacturers and sportsmen.

The new plant will give the Chicago metropolitan six race tracks. In addition to the new one they are: Lincoln Fields, Hawthorne, Arlington Park, Washington Park and the Aurora track.

Work on the new plant, which will cost $25,000, is to start at once, Thompson said.

Yellow Jackets Get Down To Work For Game With Bears

All Players Reported O.K. Following Trip

Work Is Light on First Day But Becomes Harder During Week.

BY DICK HAWKINS.

Hotel Vista Del Arroyo, Pasadena, Calif., December 24.—Tomorrow is Christmas and the Golden Tornado of Georgia Tech has finished its first day of preparation for the battle with the Bears on New Year's day.

Over on Occidental field across the beautiful city of Pasadena the Golden Bears had their third workout since their arrival, and for at least two hours this afternoon no player on either squad realized that tomorrow is Christmas.

Santa Claus was not half as important as their coaches today, and signals and formations were more in mind than presents to be sent or received. The Christmas spirit has not been forgotten, but the spirit of football has cast a shadow across the limelight that even Old Saint Nick fails to dispense.

This whole day is football mad. All of California is looking west Christmas to the "big game," and from all appearances, a goodly share of California will be in the Rose Bowl New Year's day.

Many Photographers.

This afternoon the Jackets worked for the cameramen. There were first-string and second-string photographers. These were all-American photographers and scrub photographers doing their work at the Rose Bowl, where the great Tornado from Georgia Tech was working out.

Even Bill Fincher hauled out his pocket camera and joined the chorus, and when Big Bill starts photographing you may be sure the fever is bad. Coach Alex turned his squad over to the photographers for nearly half of the practice period. They "shot" the boys in formations and they picked out the individuals from the squad to get them in action. The newspapers for the next few days are going to look like family albums of Georgia Tech.

While the pictures were being taken the boys were in their own devices and they gambled on the green like a lot of lambs. They wrestled about the turf and otherwise demonstrated the fact that they have been on a choco-train for some time.

Practice Starts.

After the photographers had finished their funny work Coach Alex sent his "California" team to one end of the field under the direction of Coach Robinson, where they practiced the scrum plays, but Stumpy, Mizell and Lumpkin took their turns at totting the apple and if the rarified air had any effect on the ambition of the boys it was not evident today.

Frank Speer, star tackle, who is ineligible for the scrum under Captain Robinson today and seems to be enjoying the activity, but he could not hide his chargin at being sent to the wrong end of the field. He will not be reinstated in time to play in the classic, however.

All In Fun.

All during the afternoon the boys were clowning about and the practice failed to assume a serious aspect even in the minds of the coaches, but this will all be changed within a couple of days. The stadium was left open to the public and everyone came in to watch the work. This will also be changed when the scrimmage starts. After tomorrow nobody will be allowed in the gates but southern newspaper men and real work will begin. It is a bit hard right now to realize that these members of the Golden Tornado will suffer any effects from this lighthearted climate, but they all say the heat will get them. Time will tell the story.

Though there was no formally arranged trip for the boys this morning they spent half of the day before Christmas looking over the beauties of Pasadena as best they could by means of rubber-neck buses, foot parties and private cars. After a half day of looking about they all gave up the matter as a bad job. They will continue to see as many of the wonders of this fairland country as possible, but all realize that it will be impossible to see them all in the short space of a few days.

Picture City.

Pasadena is a picture city under normal conditions, is a chapter out of a book right at this Christmas season. Every evergreen tree in the city is lighted for Yuletide and the downtown streets are one mass of gaudy banners proclaiming the coming of Saint Nicholas. The curbs are lined with thousands of grandstand seats erected to hold the huge crowds that

Greetings From the Gang

From Us to You

PASADENA, CAL., December 24.—We're in a strange land and a long way from home. But it gives us a comfortable sort of feeling to know that we send back to you our wish for the merriest of Christmases and most prosperous and happiest of New Year's. May 1929 treat you as well as 1928 has treated the sports world. —DICK HAWKINS.

RANTING along the trail of sports during the topsy-turvy year of 1928 we have had our ups and downs just as you and Mrs. Murphy's boy have had. It seems, however, that we have managed to come through it all quite safely. There have been times when we were guilty of mis-informing you through the public prints, but that's something for which we will be forced to ask your kind indulgence.

It has come again that time of the year when it takes you 15 minutes to walk one block; when you run into some person with an armful of bundles, scatter them over the sidewalk, and after you have helped him pick them up, he forgets all about wanting to punch you in the nose and says: "Merry Christmas and Happy New Year."

"Them's our sentiments." —BEN COTHMAN.

I'M THE fellow who writes the bad heads over the stories. I'm the man who reads the copy wrong and cuts the good stories and fills a column with stuff you don't care anything about and wouldn't read even if you did. I'm the gentleman—one of the silent partners in this sports firm—who gets the wrong heads over the wrong stories and generally messes the sports page six days a week—I'm off the other twenty-four hours. But all that can't keep me from intruding here with a bit of pleasantries—wishing you as happy a Christmas and New Year as I have had serving you this past year—my first on The Constitution.

—D. A. HALLMAN.

EVERYBODY is wishing everybody a merry Christmas and all that blab but our greeting to you is sincere. Have a merry Christmas and happy and prosperous New Year if you can because they are hard to find these times.

WITH the closing of another year just a block off, and with "Old St. Nick" with us again we feel that we should wish everyone happiness and prosperity for the coming New Year, so ending up this column I would like to add my wishes to the readers of The Constitution. A merry Christmas and a much merrier New Year. —SAM COX.

will come from all over California for the famous Tournament of Roses. The weather thus far has been ideal. During the middle of the day all the visitors may be wandering about the Vista grounds in shirt sleeves and the air is bracing as it sweeps down from the snow-capped peaks across the arroyos. This afternoon the Tornado worked in the huge dressing rooms there. The hotel management made the members of the Golden Tornado took their astatos on the spacious lawns in front of their two bungalows. They were in rare good humor and to all outward appearances, in rare good health. The air and general atmosphere are the type that bring about alert faculties and if the thermometer doesn't go on a rampage it will not be any hotter for football practice and the game than it is for half of Tech's games at home. The big Rose Bowl is almost with-

JOHN FARRELL COMING SOUTH THIS FRIDAY

New York, December 24.—(P)—Johnny Farrell's 1929 golfing campaign which he hopes will carry him to his second consecutive national open championship gets under way Friday when he is to start south for a winter of instructing and occasional tournament playing, he said today.

The Bear Brummel king of the country's golf has mapped out a moderate schedule of competition which will enable him to keep his hand in without danger of over-golfing. His first tournament appearance in Florida will be in the Miami Open, January 4 and 5, and he plans to play in most of the other major professional and open tournaments in that state in the next three months.

For the second year Johnny will serve as professional at St. Augustine, together with his brother, Jimmy. While there Johnny intends to shoot a few holes every day. He looks upon the leisurely pace of golf played for fun as good preparation for a tournament campaign calculated to bring him to his peak later in the season when the big shots such as the national open come along. Only John J. McDermott and Willie Anderson have been able to win the premier crown in successive years and Johnny has high hopes of becoming the third to accomplish it.

Several other New York professionals are preparing for the march southward, the number leaving this week including Joe Turney, runner-up to Bobby Jones for the open crown two years ago, and his brothers, Mike and Phil.

Father and Son Tourney Ended

Pinehurst, N. C., December 24.—(P)—J. D. Chapman and Richard Chapman, of Greenwich, Conn., won the seventh annual father and son golf tournament of Pinehurst Country club today, succeeding last year's winners, Sheppard and Eugene Homans, Englewood, N. J., who did not enter the event this year.

The Chapmans whacked out a fine round of 75 over the runner second championship course, having an outward nine of 37 strokes and coming back in 38.

In the net competition, in which William Wilson, York Harbor, Maine, and W. Charlton Becker, of Philadelphia, N. Y., acted as handicappers, the first prize went to A. S. Higgins and C. K. Higgins, of York, N. Y., with a card of 92-24-68. They were a stroke back of the Chapman pair, which had a tally of 75-8-67, but could take only one trophy, that of their gross score.

For second place in the nets there was a tie between C. M. and Jack Rudel, of Montreal, with 84-17-70, and Tom and R. G. Morrison, Pittsburgh, were the only other team besides the champions to break 80.

The field of 17 teams provided some extremely interesting golf. Youngest of the juniors was Ted Seefeld, 8, of Stanford, Conn., with Jimmy Blackburn, 10, of Pittsburgh, runner-up for juvenile honors.

big team is nothing to write back home about. Thus far in scrimmages the charges of Coach Nibe Price have flashed nothing but straight running plays. This is rather surprising to the coast experts who looked for the Bear mentor to work out a host of new defensive strokes for the big game. He is leaving his defensive entirely alone this far and working almost exclusively on offense. He is likely to need it before the first day of 1929 is over.

Master Minds Of Bear Team Outstanding

California "Board of Strategy" Includes Leading Names of Grid Vets.

Los Angeles, December 24.—The growing Bears from the University of California won't lack for headwork when they tackle Georgia Tech on New Year's day. As if the subtle and agile brains of Lee Elisha, star quarterback, aren't enough, consider, then, this imposing array of talent labeled the "Board of Strategy."

First and foremost is Clarence "Nile" Price, the much-maligned head coach, who rode over two years of criticism into an undefeated collegiate season this year. Grouped around him are Claude Evans, now assistant coach, who used to pilot the frosh teams when Andy Smith was in his prime. Dr. Albert Boles, line coach, has been at California since time immemorial. Dan McMillan, assistant coach, Brick Mitchell, frosh coach, scouted the Ramblin' Wreck against Georgia, and has been bubbling over with information and ideas ever since.

Trainer Praised.

And then, to add to this, Brick Muller, two-time all-American end, and Fritz Coltrin, captain and tackle, from last year have been called into action, and have joined the coaching board. And all this, plus Charley Volk, who never gets his name into the papers, but whose name is a by-word with every athlete who ever wore the blue and gold of California. Charley Volk has been the trainer of every California athletic team for 23 years. Consider his record:

1. Won three consecutive I. C. A. A. A. championships in 1921-22-23.

2. Football teams were undefeated for five consecutive years in 1920-21-22-23-24.

3. Won four consecutive coast conference basketball championships in 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927.

4. Won intercollegiate tennis championships in both singles and doubles for five consecutive years.

5. Won ten consecutive races, including the Olympic championships, with a crew considered the best in history.

Charley Volk didn't coach any of those teams, but he was trainer for each and every squad, and a lot of the credit for their success goes to his brain to keep bones, muscles and tendons in working order.

Wrigley's Hobby Proves Expensive; Drops $6,000,000.

BY PAUL R. MICKELSON.

Chicago, December 24.—(P)—William Wrigley, Jr., is a man with a $6,000,000 hobby.

Wrigley, who built one of America's largest fortunes on a stick of chewing gum, has one of the most expensive hobbies in the world. It is baseball.

Six million dollars has William Wrigley, Jr., invested in his hobby through ownership of three baseball clubs, the Chicago Cubs, the Los Angeles Pacific Coast league club and the Reading International. Yet he admits he has never banked a cent on his investment for himself.

He wants just one return—a thrill. And he hopes to get his biggest thrill this season by seeing his Cubs to a National league pennant. Not since 1918 have the Cubs won a pennant, but with Rogers Hornsby in their lineup Wrigley visions the prize all but won.

Postponing a business conference, Wrigley, a husky man with a perpetual smile, has been received thrills that money cannot buy. And think of the fun millions of other people get out of that game!

My ambition, naturally, is to have the Cubs win the National league pennant next year. And I believe we have got the goods this time, barring injuries to two or three of our best players.

"Let the critics condemn Hornsby if they want to. I believe he has been sinning against more than he has sinned. I think Rogers Hornsby is not only the greatest hitter in baseball—greater even than Babe Ruth the figures will show—but also that he is one of the cleanest men and one of the greatest characters in baseball. Rogers Hornsby wants only one thing on the diamond. That is victory. It cost me almost a half million dollars in money and players to get Rogers. But he is worth it."

"Nothing can stop me from seeing a baseball game that I can help. Last summer, I turned down bank directors' meetings to watch baseball games."

Wrigley likes fast games, but he would rather see a game end 4 to 3 than 1 to 0.

"A pitcher's battle is a treat for some people," he said, "but personally I like to see them clip that apple. As owner of the Cubs, Wrigley likes to remain in the background as much as possible."

"I can see nothing but a bright future for baseball," Wrigley concluded. "It is getting greater every year. Better baseball is being played and a better sportsmanship prevails. I'm in the game as long as I live."

Greetings and What Not

ANOTHER Christmas has made its appearance—the nineteenth hundred and twenty-eighth one in history—and for the past several of these it has been the custom of the staff of national sports experts corresponding for The Constitution, to add its greetings to those of the local department.

The local sports staff welcomes the custom, as it helps to fill the columns of this page on a day when news is scant; the telegraph agencies applaud gaily—the more greetings the more tolls; the writers themselves think enough of voicing the season's pleasures to do it without charge. As for the public—read the greetings or not, as you like.

GRANTLAND RICE, nationally known sports writer, and reckoned one of the outstanding experts in the country, addresses his telegram to Dick Hawkins. Hawkins being absent, the telegram was opened by a member of the staff.

"Christmas greetings and best luck to you and the bunch."

WALTER TRUMBULL, sports editor of the North American Newspaper Alliance, flings a blunch of roses Georgiawards.

"Citizens of a state which can present such a golfer as Bobby Jones, baseball player such as Ty Cobb; track man such as Hamm; and a football team such as Georgia Tech do not appear to need much in the way of good wishes. Nevertheless, I offer the readers of The Constitution my best wishes for a merry, happy Christmas and an interesting and prosperous New Year."

GEORGE KIRKSEY, sports writer for the United News, adds his sentiments as follows:

"The best Christmas present I can think of for Old Kris Kringle to bring Atlanta sport fans is a victory for Georgia Tech over California New Year's day. Come on Tech!"

ALAN J. GOULD, known the country over as sports editor of the Associated Press, telegraphs:

"Mighty glad to join again in extending my best wishes to The Constitution and its readers for another big year. Bobby Jones, as usual, has given Atlanta something to cheer about for 1928 in addition to Tech's Tornado and Ed Hamm, two other champions I have had the pleasure of seeing add to the south's growing sports prestige."

W. O. M'GEEHAN, sports writer for the New York Herald-Tribune and The Atlanta Constitution, pauses from grinding out "Down the Line" articles to rush the following wire:

"Greetings to the readers of The Atlanta Constitution for whom Frank L. Stanton, the greatest lyric poet ever produced in the United States, used to write, and who if he was alive could best express the spirit of the season."

WESTBROOK PEGLER, writer for the Chicago Tribune and The Constitution, adds a greeting with a pessimistic tinge:

"Merry Christmas to my reader if any."

ROBERT EDGREN, nationally known prize fight expert, who has written ten more on figures of the squared ring than all the Shakespeare professed to have been read by the late lamented Eugene Tunney, wires:

"Heartiest greetings to all our sports readers and wishes for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year in which we will enjoy even better sports than in the past, and may hope to see more teams as gallant as the Georgia Tech eleven which will give California the battle of the football year at Pasadena on New Year's day."

W. W. ROPER, football coach at Princeton, who writes for The North American Newspaper Alliance and The Atlanta Constitution, sends his lines:

"Best wishes for a merry Christmas and a happy New Year to The Atlanta Constitution and its many readers. May 1929 be a bigger and better year in sports than 1928."

TOMMY LOUGHNAN, world's light-heavyweight champion, contender for the title vacated by Tunney, and correspondent of The Constitution, voices the following sentiments:

"May I, through The Constitution, extend my very warmest Christmas greetings to all my friends in Atlanta and wish them the most prosperous New Year they've ever had. In the coming twelve months for myself I can only promise I will do my best to vindicate your support by winning the heavyweight championship of the world."

VINCENT RICHARDS, professional tennis champion of the world, and writer for The Constitution, sends:

"Merry Christmas, happy New Year to you all. Here's hoping for another big season of professional tennis."

Five Fighters Named by Tex To Seek Title

Promoter Says Some New Man May Crop Up Before Summer Bouts Are Past.

BY FRANK GETTY.

United News Sports Editor.

New York, December 24.—(United News).—Five heavyweight boxers were named today by Tex Rickard as participants in the elimination tournament of 1929, which is to start with a bout at Miami Beach the last week in February.

"Gene Tunney's successor should be found among these five," said the promoter. The heavyweights named were:

Jack Sharkey, of Boston. Young Stribling, of Georgia. Paulino Uzcudun, of Spain. Tom Heeney, of New Zealand. Jack Dempsey.

Rickard said that the contest for the Tunney-Muldown trophy, symbolic of the heavyweight championship of the world, was not necessarily limited to the above, but added that in his opinion these five men were the class of the field.

"Some young fellow may come along who'll have to be given consideration," Tex admitted. "But, shucks, you can't make a heavyweight champion in a year or two. It takes a long time."

The first "semi-final" bout of the elimination tournament will take place late in February at a dog track at Miami Beach in which the promoter is interested. One of the contestants will be Stribling. That much is definite.

Strib's Opponent.

"Stribling's opponent will be either Paulino or Sharkey," said Tex. "I ain't ready right now to say which."

The best guess is that it will be Sharkey who faces the Georgian in the ring at Miami Beach. Rickard has been unable to complete negotiations with the Lithuanian, who has been detained in Boston by legal proceedings and so unable to come to New York to close the deal for his services.

The promoter will leave for Florida Wednesday night, and if he has not arranged matters with Sharkey by that time, further negotiations will be carried on at long range.

Paulino, who is in Cali, Colombia, preparing to fight old Jack Renault for the championship of that country on his way to a final bout at the hands of Gene Tunney last July.

"He's entitled to a chance on his record," the promoter insisted.

What About Dempsey?

Jack Dempsey remains an unknown quantity, Rickard admitted.

"But if he decides to return, I'd take him against any of the rest," he added.

Dempsey is expected to confer with Rickard at Miami Beach, January 1. The former champion may accept employment as a figure head and drawing card around the dog track.

The promoter is ranking the country's boxers in other divisions as well as the heavyweight class, and expects to make an interesting announcement early in the year. His opinion of the middleweights may occasion no little surprise.

Ben de Vos, of Belgium, and Ace Hudkins, of Nebraska, the two leading contenders, meet at Madison Square Garden next Friday night. It has been said that the winner of that bout may be matched to meet Mickey Walker for the title. The fact is that the winner of Friday's fight may become middleweight champion. Walker, Tex believes, will not box again at 160 pounds.

Spirit of Christmas Echoes AND SANTA CLAUS MAKES HIS ANNUAL VISIT Inside Drab Police Station

with the assistance of a patrolman walks more or less up to the latticed case and calmly leans his elbow heavily upon the station lieutenant's window shelf. This chap didn't know Lieutenant Cleve Hudson. That's evident. A cold stare from the lieutenant. Cold enough to sober anybody up. Lieutenant Hudson gazes quietly into the man's eyes.

"Tired?" he inquires casually, easily and completely nonchalantly. But you should have heard that tone of voice. It would sober Rip Van Winkle out of his famous 29-year drunk.

The new applicant sobers—and how!

Straightening up quickly, he removes his elbows just as a "Merry Christmas" echoes from outside.

"Christmas?" he says a little confusedly. "Well, I'll be cussed; it is Christmas, isn't it? Gee, I hate that. You know I'm supposed to be Santa Claus tonight. The son's 7, but the girl's 9. Mother died three years ago. Reckon it'll be about heart-busting for the girl when, and perhaps the last Santa Claus visit she'll have. They find out about the gag early, these days."

"Yeh?" the lieutenant answers, and he kinda shuffles the paper around on the desk. "Got a couple of kids, eh? Him-m-m-m, you're a funny kind of father, aren't you? Run off and leave the kids and get lit up on this white lightning."

"I know," the fellow, now pale and completely sober, replies, "put me in a cell. I don't ever deserve freedom after this."

"Yeh?" the lieutenant answers again, and you can see he's kinda thinking like, "Where do you live?" he thunders suddenly.

The man gives a nice residential address.

"Well," the lieutenant reaches for his hat. "Drag your carcass on out here. I'll take you home. You ain't worth it yourself, but I can't afford to let those kids get all busted up."

And so the ex-hardboiled lieutenant and the ex-hardboiled drunk go out together.

For, after all, you know—It's Christmas!

CARDINALS VISIT POPE AND EXTEND YULE GREETINGS

Rome, Ga., December 24.—(AP)—All the cardinals resident in Rome called upon Pope Pius today to present their Christmas greetings, in accordance with century-old tradition.

The pontiff, who this year completed 50 years of his ministry, touched on the illness of King George and the apparent averting of hostilities between Paraguay and Bolivia in his address to the cardinals.

Of King George the pope said: "We have been afraid and prayed for the life of a sovereign who came so courteously to visit us here, a sovereign in whose empire, the largest in the world, so many millions of Catholics live and prosper in all forms of a Catholic life, as the eucharistic congress at Australia so recently has shown. We have feared and prayed for the life of this sovereign who has shown himself so well disposed and benevolent towards all these Catholics, and now Divine providence seems to confirm us in our hope of his early return to perfect health."

Merry Christmas! Happy New Year!

ONCE again the carols ring across the world, proclaiming Christmas gaiety and fun! Once again the chimes of New Year thrill out to all the nations the joyousness and hope of another year!

'Tis a season of happiness, of new undertakings, of kindness and good cheer. And at this season, we wish to extend to every one a full and overflowing wish for the merriest Christmas and the most happy and prosperous New Year!

Secretary Hawkins
Clubhouse
on the River Bank

Dear Club Members:

Today I want to take time out just to wish all of you a Merry Christmas—the merriest one you ever had—and to say that I am proud of all of you boys and girls, who meet with me each week in the pages of the Atlanta Constitution.

And another thing, I want to say that I hope Nineteen Hundred and Twenty Nine is going to be a big one for all, a year that you will remember because it really lived up to our motto, fair and square.

And another thing, I hope old Santa Claus was fair and square to you me—but you will hear all about that in the Constitution tomorrow.

Yours, fair and square,
Secretary Hawkins

Christmas Day Will Be Clear, Forecast Says

A fine, fair Christmas day is on schedule for Atlanta according to the forecast of C. F. von Herrmann, head of the local United States weather bureau, who says that rising temperatures are indicated and that the few clouds which might be on hand won't be enough to bother anybody. "The weather should be ideal," was the way he described it.

Temperatures Monday ranged from a minimum of 31 up to 46 and today's low and high are expected to be 40 and 55. All of Georgia and the rest of the cotton states will enjoy fine weather, Mr. von Herrmann said.

Chest Agencies Bring Christmas Cheer to Needy

Weeks of effort by the Atlanta Community Chest and its relief societies to make sure that in no home in Atlanta will this be a bleak and empty Christmas day was said Monday night to have been crowned with success.

Every needy family of which there was a record has been remembered, and through one channel or another supplied with the necessities of a merry Christmas, it was said at the office of the Social Service exchange, the heart of the Community Chest organization.

The service of the Community Chest in respect of Christmas bounty has been to see that no needy home is forgotten, and that there shall be no duplication or waste of Christmas charity. For this purpose the machinery of the Social Service exchange was put into motion, and from its records of worthy applicants for help were drawn the names of families and individuals to be remembered.

Lists were supplied from this source to relief organizations planning the distribution of Christmas gifts. The Salvation Army, the Family Welfare society, the American Red Cross, the Camp Fire Girls, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, among agencies of the Community Chest, checked with the Social Service exchange the lists of their beneficiaries. There was a similar check for the lists of outside agencies, such as the Elks, the Rotary club, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, and others which took part in the distribution of Christmas bounty. "In this way duplications were prevented and names of those who might otherwise have been forgotten were added to the lists."

Miss Mamie Ansley, secretary of the Social Service exchange, was at her desk until late yesterday, awaiting until the last hour new applications for help, checking the last lists of charitable organizations, and working until there was little chance that any would be forgotten.

The Community Chest several weeks ago asked Atlantans to utilize its organization as the medium of their Christmas bounty, assuring to all that it would be able to place the gifts where they were most needed and that duplications would be avoided.

PAINLEVE PRAISES NATIONAL DEFENSE PLEA OF COOLIDGE

Paris, December 24.—(AP)—President Coolidge's argument in his message to congress on a strong national defense was quoted by Paul Painleve, minister of war, in the senate today as "good sense in justifying what his opponents assailed as a contradiction between the signature of the Kellogg-Brinard treaty and an increased war budget."

GANG OF VANDALS STRIPS CHRISTMAS TREE OF LIGHTS

Mrs. H. A. Pendergraph, 1148 Piedmont avenue, worked long and hard during the last few days to prepare her living tree for Christmas. She had read in The Constitution how others had pledged to help make this Christmas the merriest ever and she wanted to do her best to radiate the good cheer of her household out into the neighborhood.

Mrs. Pendergraph had to rush her work to get it finished in time to light it Sunday night. But she succeeded and early Sunday afternoon the tree in her front yard was ablaze with multicolored lights and the center of attraction in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Pendergraph turned out the lights at 11 o'clock Sunday night. When she awakened Monday morning and looked out she was greeted by a tragic sight. Vandals had entered her yard and cut the wires on the tree, mutilated the globes and in one fell swoop wrecked everything she had done to help push the Christmas spirit.

Needless to report, Mrs. Pendergraph was deeply annoyed and vowed woe be unto those who destroyed her tree if she learns their identity.

Husband Is Held To Grand Jury In Canton Slaying

Canton, Ohio, December 24.—(AP)—Wiliam O. Heldman, Lorain furnace salesman, will be held to the grand jury for further investigation of his account of the deaths of his young wife and Vernon E. Fearn, Canton coal dealer, it was decided by authorities today.

Previous to the announcement, Heldman had been subjected to nine hours of questioning in an attempt to break down his original story that his wife, Margaret, committed suicide after having confessed to him that she was responsible for the shooting to death of Fearn. No charges will be filed until later, Prosecutor Henry W. Harter announced.

The next regular grand jury session will be held early in January and it is probable that the case will be taken up at that time. All of the witnesses who have appeared so far will in the investigation be called to testify and their testimony will determine the course to be taken, Harter said.

Catarrh Favors Flu, Colds, Coughs and Croup

Find a man, woman or child who is afflicted with chronic catarrh of the nose and its connecting air passages and you will always find a patient who is most susceptible to more serious diseases. Why? Science explains that catarrh interferes with natural breathing, thus preventing proper oxygenation and purification of the blood by the lungs and also absolutely prevents restful, refreshing sleep. Catarrh is a constant drain upon the nutrition of the body, making the patient weak and thereby susceptible to all germ infections such as colds, flu, pneumonia, etc.

Your physician will tell you that catarrh is a local condition, not a systemic disease. You must fight it constantly with a local remedy that reaches the spot. Of the many remedies that have been tested for the relief of catarrh, none has given such uniformly successful results to the physician or attained such popular favor as the prescription of Dr. Runion, known to our druggists as Runion's White Wonder Salve. Applied three or four times a day, morning and night, "White Wonder" gives quick and most delightful relief. Clean, greaseless and absolutely stainless, White Wonder is a perfect example of the finest pharmaceutical art—a joy and comfort to everyone who suffers with nasal catarrh.

Christmas Greetings

EACH one cherishes at heart an ideal of Christmas; to all it is a day of poetry amid drab days of prose. Let's lay aside all strife, anger, tumult and hurry of business grind and let us spread abroad the spirit of fraternal righteousness and good will. Our wish is that you may realize at this time your most cherished desires and when the day is ended may its spirit linger in your heart always.

RADIO-ING THE AIR WAVES

BY THE DIAL TWISTER.

A Christmas day organ recital, with the program arranged to take full advantage of the varied possibilities of the modern pipe organ, will be given by the Eveready hour at 8 o'clock this evening over WSB and the N. B. C. system.

Lew White, famous American organist, will play the organ. Mr. White is known wherever lovers of the organ in America gather, for his work as chief organist of the Roxy theater in New York city, the world's largest motion picture theater, and through his playing as guest organist in the principal cities of the country. Mr. White has selected familiar and tuneful numbers for the program, including a musical novelty, "Musical Snuff Box."

Two soloists will also be heard, Janet Gardier and Justin Buchard, in groups of songs.

Prompted by the fact that the close of Christmas day usually finds the Yuletide family party prepared to take things a little more quietly than during the morning and afternoon outbursts of feasting and frolic, the directors of the Eveready Hour chose the organ as the sole musical instrument for this Tuesday's program, in preference to the customary orchestral groupings.

Lew White has been studying music since the age of ten years, when he was sent abroad by his father, a prominent Philadelphia music teacher, to study piano and theory under the German master, Heinrich Pfitzner. He later graduated from the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music, and since then he has toured the country eight times as guest organist at leading theaters. He was premier organist for the Stanley Company of America before coming to New York to become chief organist of the Roxy theater, which latter position he recently resigned. He is founder and director of the Lew White Institute of Organ.

Another thirty minutes of dance music will be broadcast by the Clicquot Club Eskimos through WSB and the NBC system's coast-to-coast network tonight at 9 o'clock.

The popular ballad "You're the Cream in My Coffee" will be heard with a vocal chorus; a special arrangement of "Down Home Rag," by Director Harry Reser, and a medley of "My Baby's Arms," "Whispering," and "Avalon" are the highlights of the Christmas program presented by the Clicquot Club Eskimos.

The complete program follows: Clicquot Club Eskimos—Reser Vocal Chorus. Lead Me Your Eyes—Mooney. Banjo Solo—Harry Reser. Selected. Monks Business—Harry Reser. Down Home Rag—Arr. by Reser. Medley: My Baby's Arms, Whispering, The Break-Up—Archer. St. Petersburg Sligh Ride. The Brunswick Panatope music half hour over WSB at 5 o'clock this

REV. J. C. COLLUM RESIGNS POSITION AT THIRD BAPTIST

The Rev. J. C. Collum, pastor of the Third Baptist church, resigned from the pulpit of the congregation at the close of services Sunday morning. It was announced Monday. While it was stated by the pastor to be final and to become effective December 31, the notice has not been acted upon by the congregation, and as far as could be learned Monday no arrangements have been made to fill the vacancy.

Mr. Collum, under whose leadership the church is said to have made its best all-round showing in 1928 of the last five years, made no definite statement of his plans for the future, other than that he intends to spend part of the winter in Florida, before returning to religious service.

ELEVEN ROYALISTS TAKEN IN STAMBOUL IN PLOT ON KEMAL

Constantinople, December 24.—(AP) Charged with plotting against President Mustafa Kemal, eleven persons, including four women, were under arrest today in Stamboul. Police charged that the plot was a royalist one, and said it was not connected with the arrest last week of 20 persons at Broussa, who were charged with plotting to aid prisoners to escape.

MAN COLLAPSES IN JAIL AFTER DEATH OF WIFE

Jacksonville, Fla., December 24.—(AP)—After declaring that his shooting of his wife last night was accidental, James F. Parker, 43, was said by police to be near a nervous collapse in jail here today.

Parker was held after the fatal shooting of his wife, Lucy A. Parker. Two sons of the couple told police that the pair had been quarreling prior to the shooting, and that Mrs. Parker had entered the room of the boys.

Parker followed her, they told police, and shot her.

Mayer Was on Way For Christmas Visit When Killed in Crash

Waycross, Ga., December 24.—(Spec.)—C. P. Mayer, of St. Elmo, Tenn., who was killed Sunday in an airplane crash at Chattanooga, was en route to Waycross to spend the Christmas holidays with his daughter, Mrs. J. M. Flanagan.

As soon as the news reached Waycross, Mrs. Flanagan, together with her husband and children, left for Chattanooga. Mr. Mayer was foreign language interpreter for the Chattanooga Medicine company. He had planned to come to Atlanta by airplane, and from Atlanta to Waycross by train.

Phenomenal Cheer Is Ruling Spirit In Atlanta on Christmas Day

Christmas is here again. To some that will mean the exchange of gifts, bright tinsel-covered squares of friendship and good will, filling the malls, crowding the old pine tree, and traveling through crowded city streets in the arms of children and bright-faced girls and boys. To others it will mean that fairies live, that Santa can rise like a leaf before the wind to every house in the land and wink as he distributes his pack of inimitable holiday toys.

Do you believe in Christmas? Then perhaps this season of mistletoe and holly and phenomenal cheer means that the spirit of unselfishness rules the world; that great unseen forces, whose invisibility makes them none the less real, are truly abroad.

Or perhaps you see in this annual season that embraces the world a day when love back there 2,000 years ago found its Bethlehem and made the whole world kin. If so you have found what Christmas, not giving or Santa Claus, but Christmas, in its essence and its truth, really means.

Atlanta herself has gleaned something of this spiritual significance of the day. Down at Five Points, where heretofore only traffic jams and pedestrian lines have attracted the attention of passers-by, a brilliant pine shall burn, a myriad tiny lights, flashing red, green, gold, purple and jade, bewitching the eyes, attesting the oneness of a city which would emblazon a single tree in the name of all.

E. Pluribus Unum. From many shall one. From widely variant members, one is the realm of human society shall be finally evolved. So enjoy an informal Christmas party on Christmas, this man is going out to the friends, the cheerful, and the otherwise sad, a community will become conscious of its kinship to all men, here in Atlanta, in America, and around the world.

Through light-studded garlands of Christmas greenery, with living trees flashing their message of cheer for the world outside, some will wend their way to church, where the Babe in the manger will wait beneath the altar, much as 2,000 years ago, he waited, while those with a vision of the significance of his birth found their way to his stall. Some will visit friends, those less fortunate, or enjoy an informal Christmas party around holy tree or glowing yuletide logs. And then when lighted pine trees spring, like eager phalanxes of good will on every lawn, carollers will come forth throughout the city. "Glory to God in the Highest" will issue from bands of singers and spill the universal song of love through the ubiquitous microphone. Human emotions in their frailty will kneel before that compelling force of that born exactly 1,923 years ago today.

Miss Honour and Mr. Brunkhurst Wed at Ceremony December 22

Cordial interest is centered in the wedding plans of Miss Grace Mina Applegate Honour, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seignious Honour, and William Lee Brunkhurst, of Scranton, Pa., formerly of Augusta, Ga., whose wedding will be a brilliant social event of Saturday, December 29. The ceremony will be performed at 7 o'clock in the evening by Rev. Reginald Arthur Dawson of Plain Dealing, La., assisted by Rev. R. W. Oakley at the Peachtree Road Presbyterian church.

The lovely young bride will be given in marriage by her father, Charles Seignious Honour. She will be attended by her sisters as her matrons of honor. Mrs. John Wesley Yancey, acting as first matron of honor, Mrs. Reginald Arthur Dawson, Mrs. Alfred Dargan Odom and Mrs. Henry G. Brunkhurst, of Augusta, Ga.

The group of girls acting as bridesmaids will be Miss Elizabeth Johnson, Miss Gladys Hansard, of Carrollton, Ga.; Miss Virginia Gardner and Mrs. Richard H. Daly. The flower girls will be Annetta Honour Dawson and Eleanor Theresa Odom, nieces of the bride. Little Charles Wesley Dawson, nephew of the bride, will be the ring bearer. Henry G. Brunkhurst, of Augusta, Ga., brother of the groom-elect, will be best man and the groomsmen will include Frank Clark and Anson Clark, of Augusta, Ga.; Hal Patton, of Berkeley, Cal.; and Raymond McCarty, of Augusta, Ga. Ushers will be Charles M. Honoring, Augustus Darrel Honour, Reginald Seignious Honour and Alfred Dargan Odom, brothers of the bride.

Immediately following the ceremony a buffet supper will be served to only members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests, at the old Honour colonial mansion in Roswell boulevard, after which the bride and groom will leave in their motor car to spend awhile in Augusta, Ga., with the groom's mother, later visiting other points in the east and after January 15 will be at home in Scranton, Pa.

Among the out-of-town guests who will attend the wedding are: Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Dixon, of Macon, Ga.; Miss Mina Wilson Applegate, of Wellsburg, W. Va.; Rev. and Mrs. Reginald Arthur Dawson, Annetta Honour Dawson and Charles Wesley Dawson, of Plain Dealing, La.; Mrs.

Miss Johnson Is Presented To Society at Lovely Reception

Fashionable Atlanta society assembled to greet Miss Elizabeth Johnson, one of the season's loveliest buds, when her mother, Mrs. Paul Johnson, entertained at a brilliant reception Monday afternoon at her home on Fourteenth street, presenting her daughter to both the married and the unmarried members of the feminine social contingent.

Surrounded by a floral bower, gifts from hundreds of admiring friends of the honor guest, Miss Johnson, her mother and her sister, Miss Lillian Johnson, received the guests, forming a charming family group in the living room of the handsome home. Throughout the spacious rooms palms, ferns and southern smiles were effectively used with quantities of red roses, mistletoe and holly.

Debutante's Costume. Miss Johnson wore a model of white, transparent velvet, fashioned with a long tight bodice caught at the waist line in the back with white gardenias. A long train completed this modish gown. With this she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of flowers in pastel shades.

Mrs. Johnson's gown was also an imported model of saffron colored satin fashioned along the becoming straight lines. Her flowers were orchids and valley lilies.

Miss Lillian Johnson was lovely wearing a blue moderne satin made with long tight bodice, the skirt being finished with tiny tulle ruffles. She wore a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies.

Assisting Hostesses.

Assisting in entertaining the guests were Miss Marion Wolff, Miss Susan Heath, Miss Frances Howard, Miss Louise Fisher, of Newman, and the members of the Debutante club, Miss Kitty Park, Miss Hortense Adams, Miss Marion Harris, Miss Estelle Boynton, Miss Adelaide Howell, Miss Helen Cody, Miss Marion Hull Smith, Miss Josephine Hollis, Miss Rosalie Gunby, Miss Eleanor Mande and Miss Cecile Jewell.

ing the impressive ring ceremony. The altar was banked in ferns, palms and smilax, with a profusion of white chrysanthemums. Added to the beauty were tall white candle stands and candelabra bearing white tapers shedding a mellow glow. Mrs. Robert Cunningham presided at the organ, and rendered several musical numbers prior to the entrance of the wedding party, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march.

Dahney Downing entered with John Deering and R. T. Penecost with Robert Downing entered by opposite aisles, forming a semi-circle before the altar. The bride, becomingly attired in a soft blue gown with accessories to match, and wearing a bouquet of pink roses and valley lilies, entered with her father, J. P. Downing, who gave her in marriage. The groom, with his best man, Charlie Spangle, entered an opposite aisle.

Mrs. Olsson has been a very popular teacher for several years in Washington seminary, while Mr. Olsson is connected with a prominent law firm of the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Olsson left for a wedding trip through Florida. Upon their return they will be at home to their friends in Decatur.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the wedding were Mrs. William Olsson and Miss Helen Olsson, mother and sister of the groom, from Pensacola, Fla.; Mr. Dahney Downing, brother of the bride, from Birmingham, Ala.; and Mrs. T. W. Hutchison, sister of the bride, from Jacksonville, Fla.

Double Wedding Ceremony Takes Place in Decatur.

Of cordial interest throughout the state was the double marriage of Miss Frances Duke to Bernie Hardman and Miss Jeannette Hardman to W. J. Mathias, which was solemnized at an impressive ceremony Saturday afternoon, December 22, at 3 o'clock at the Kirkwood Methodist church. The church was decorated for the occasion with luxuriant green palms interspersed with baskets of pink roses, while the soft glow of white candles in silver candelabra lent a touch of sheer loveliness to the scene. The double ceremony was performed by Rev. L. K. Barnett and Rev. W. B. Hamby in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives.

Preceding the ceremony an artistic program of music was rendered by Miss Marian Coon, pianist, and Miss Ruth Allen and Miss Mary Dobbie, harpists, while Miss Clara Giletrap sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly." During the harp solo, Miss Mary Williams, cousin of Miss Duke, entered and lighted the candles. Miss Williams wore a dress of tan crepe with shoes to match and a shoulder bouquet of sweet peas and sweetheart roses.

The wedding party entered to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march and Mendelssohn's march was used as a recessional. During the ceremony the harpists played "To a Wild Rose." Miss Duke and Miss Miss Elsie Mathias, as bridesmaids, were dressed in tan and blue georgette, with hats to match and carried old-fashioned nosegays of pink rosebuds. Mrs. Troy G. Nabers, in tan chiffon, and Mrs. Harry Williams, in blue chiffon, with hats to match, were the lovely matrons of honor and carried arm bouquets of Premier roses. The little flower girls, Norma Galloway and Madeline Hardman, cousins of the bride, wore

Christmas in Georgia

By IDA FRANCES WING.
Staff Correspondent at Fort McPherson.

Christmas in Georgia!

Such a joyous time for the military group gathered at Fort McPherson from the four corners of the countryside united together in the service of Uncle Sam. Christmas, with the simple and charming hospitality of Georgia to the stranger within her gates, for indeed the military contingent so cosmopolitan in its personnel, is verily a stranger, although a very much welcomed one. Christmas, with the brisk winds blowing from the hills along leaf-strewn trails, with grey clouds scurrying past and a scent of pine and cedar in the air and stockings hung before mantels and a heavenly smell of delicious viands being prepared in the kitchen under the deft hands of the old-fashioned "colored cooks."

Indeed, a rather different Christmas from the three tropical holiday seasons spent by Major General and Mrs. Richmond Pearson Davis in colorful Hawaii, where the poinsettias grow seven feet in height against one's garden wall and the soft breezes and gentle splash of the surf belie the fact of Christmas. Different, also, is the season this year from the past year spent by General and Mrs. Abraham G. Lott "somewhere at sea" aboard the U. S. A. T. Cambrai, en route to the mainland from Honolulu. The army group aboard that little transport arranged a tree and gifts for each of the eight hundred soldiers and fifty children who were forced to travel by army orders at the Christmas tide. A heavy sea and choppy going added a touch of real heroism to the kindly acts of holiday preparations and gift wrapping below deck.

Many, too, are the climes in which the army children have hung up their Christmas stockings and received Santa's offering. Little Betty Joffe, the two-year-old daughter of Lieutenant and Mrs. I. H. Joffe, spent her first Christmas day in the Blue Grass region of Kentucky, while Charles Hall, the son of Chaplain and Mrs. John Hall, had his candle-light tree gift laden by Kriss Kringle in Germany, and Junior Keeler, the small son of Captain and Mrs. Maxwell G. Keeler, had a happy Christmas two seasons past at Corregidor, P. I. This year little Jacqueline Weckerling will upset Japanese tradition by observing her holiday December 25 in her home in Tokyo, where Lieutenant and Mrs. John Weckerling are stationed. Sturdy Bobby Chandler, the son of Captain and Mrs. Cyril Chandler, observed his first Christmas in Panama and took his first outing on the Fourth of July avenue at the holiday season, while Peggy Myll, the daughter of Major and Mrs. Nelson Myll, spent a white Christmas in Colorado, and Mary Dinsmore, the daughter of Captain and Mrs. John R. Dinsmore, received Santa's gifts last year at her quarters in Porto Rico. Bennie Jones, the son of Major and Mrs. Augustus B. Jones, also spent a happy Christmas under tropical skies, for he decorated his first Christmas tree on the lanai of his quarters in the shadow of Diamond Head in Hawaii.

This season this group of army children will receive their presents at Fort McPherson, where the living Christmas tree, lighted on the parade grounds and winking out a message of good cheer to the passer-by, the holly wreaths hanging in windows and the Christmas candles shining through the panes proclaim the holiday spirit of the garrison.

pink georgette with pink hairbows, carrying baskets of Premier roses.

The grooms had as their best man Leocoe Burdette and M. C. Carpenter, and acting as groomsmen were Russell Galloway and Louis Flemister.

The brides were exquisite in their gowns of transparent velvet, Miss Duke wearing brown velvet with bronze shoes and hat, and Miss Hardman wore blue velvet with silver hat and slippers, and they carried bouquets of bride's roses showered with lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardman left for a motor trip through Florida, and Mr. and Mrs. Mathias for a week in New Orleans. Upon their return the young couples will make their home in Atlanta.

STAR AND CROSS FORMED BY LIGHTS IN OFFICE WINDOWS

A sign of Christmas that was seen far and wide over the city on the eve of the birthday anniversary was a large illuminated star and cross made up of windows in the Peters building, on Peachtree street, near Five Points. The lighting effect will be displayed again tonight, officials of the Peters Land company stated.

NEWS AND FEATURES OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Miss Amy Quillian Weds Mr. Nixon At Home Ceremony

Miss Amy Quillian and Raymond Blalock Nixon were married at 9:30 o'clock Monday morning at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. James V. Poole, 947 Ponce de Leon avenue. Owing to the recent death of the bride's uncle and guardian, Fletcher A. Quillian, Sr., only the immediate family were present. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Warren A. Candler, a life-time friend of both families. Mr. and Mrs. Nixon left immediately afterward for a motor trip through Florida.

Mrs. Nixon comes from a family that has been prominent for many years in the upbuilding of Georgia. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Quillian, of Athens. She attended Wesleyan university, where she was graduated from the University of Georgia. She is also a graduate of the library school of Emory university. For the last three years she has been a member of the library staff at Emory. She is a member of the Chi Omega sorority.

Mr. Nixon is the son of Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Nixon, formerly of Tampa, Fla., and now of Bradenton. Before coming to Atlanta he was on the editorial staff of the Tampa Times. He is a graduate of Emory university, where he was a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity and the Omicron Delta Kappa Honor society. He was also manager and a soloist of the Emory Glee club. He is now head of the department of journalism and assistant to the president of Emory university. He is a past supreme historian of Pi Kappa Phi and is secretary of the Emory Alumni association. Upon their return to Atlanta Mr. and Mrs. Nixon will be at home at 221 North Candler street, Decatur.

Mr. and Mrs. Haden Honor Little Guests.

One of the loveliest of the Christmas parties was the party at which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Haden entertained on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock, honoring the children of the family.

The home was effectively decorated with Christmas evergreens and red candles and scented pointsettias.

The lovely old English ceremonial of "lighting the tree," the large evergreen tree which stands beside the hospitable door of the Haden home, took place at 5 o'clock while Christmas carols were sweetly sung by the little guests.

The affair assembled the children of the family and their parents, and a few intimate friends of the young household, each one bringing two special guests.

SLIGHT QUAKE FELT ON JERSEY ISLAND

St. Helier, Jersey Island, December 24.—(AP)—Slight tremors were felt on Jersey Island last night mostly in the eastern districts. There was no damage.

IT WAS CHRISTMAS EVE WHEN WE GOT DOC WATERS SLEIGH AND DROVE DOWN MAIN STREET. WE STOPPED AT A STORE AND BOUGHT SOME THINGS. THEN WE DROVE BACK TO THE LITTLE SICK GIRLS HOUSE.

OLD DOC WATERS WAS PRETTY MAD AT US FOR TAKING HIS HORSE AND SLEIGH, BUT WHEN HE SAW THAT WE WERE ONLY PLAYING SANDY CLAUDE HE JUST BUST OUT LAUGHING, AND THAT LITTLE GIRL—

"GEE SHE WAS TICKLED. I HURRIED OUT AND SAID, 'COME ON FELLOWS, LET'S BEAT IT QUICK!' BUT DOC WATERS FOLLOWED ME OUT AND SAID, 'COME ON, JUMP IN MY SLEIGH, I CAN CARRY YOU ALL.'

"HE DIDN'T NOTICE THE DEER HORNS WE HAD PUT ON HIS HORSE. OH BOY! THOSE HORNS SLIPPED AND THE HORSE BOLTED, AND SPILLED US ALL OVER THE ROAD. THAT WAS THE LAST WE SAW OF THE SLEIGH

"WE DECIDED WE BETTER GET HOME BEFORE THE REAL SANDY CAME, SO WE SCOOTED. BILL DABBY CAME HOME WITH ME, HE IS STAYING AT MY HOUSE TONIGHT. TOMORROW IS CHRISTMAS, HOORAY."

Rusco Sales Staff Will Hold Southern Conference in City

One of the largest gatherings in Atlanta following Christmas will be held when the sales representatives from numerous territories in the south of the Russell Manufacturing company gather for their annual general conference at the Georgian Terrace on December 28 and 29.

G. N. Shoop, manager of the Atlanta branch, which serves the south, stated Monday that several officials from the general offices in Middletown, Conn., will be present, including C. C. Lyman, assistant manager of the national organization; R. F. Jones, selling engineer; Harold W. Jones, general service manager; and J. M. Wilson, selling sales manager. In addition, Frank Whipple, representative of the Charles W. Hoyt company, New York city, advertising agents for the Russell Manufacturing company, will be present to describe the 1924 advertising program on Rusco products. Mr. Alden, of the Cowdrey Brake Tester Organization, Inc., is also expected.

The Russell Manufacturing company, manufacturers and marketers of Rusco woven automotive and industrial products, is nearing completion of a century's growth and progress, having been founded in 1820 and incorporated in 1834. The Atlanta division of the company covers the entire south, with its branch offices and warehouse at 555-561 Whitehall street, S. W., Atlanta. Mr. Shoop is manager of this branch, and George F. Perry and H. L. Winie are assistant managers in charge of sales. J. B. Thomas is manager of the service department, and C. L. Daniels is manager of the credit department.

Dr. Marion Conklin is spending the holidays in Miami Beach, Fla., at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Conklin.

S. A. E.'S WILL GATHER HERE ON WAY TO MIAMI

Delegates from all parts of the country, en route to Miami to attend the national convention of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, December 28-31, will gather in Atlanta Thursday and will leave over a special train via the Southern at 12 o'clock noon. The special train will bring parties from Boston, Washington, Chicago, Detroit and Cincinnati and several cars will be added at Atlanta to make up the special train which will run solid to Miami via the Southern to Jacksonville and thence over the Florida East Coast, arriving Miami at 8:30 a. m., Friday.

All the national officers of the fraternity and the majority of the province officers and delegates from college chapters and alumni associations will be aboard the special train when it leaves Atlanta, including Robert T. Jones, Jr., honorary eminent supreme archon, and Lauren Foreman, eminent supreme archon, both of Atlanta; O. K. Quivey, of Baltimore, deputy archon; George D. Kimball, of Denver, Colo., warden; Judge Alfred K. Nipper, of Cincinnati, herald; Eric A. Dawson, of Evanston, Ill., recorder, and Judge Walter B. Jones, of Montgomery, Ala., archon of Epsilon province which includes Georgia, Alabama and Florida.

The delegates from the east will arrive on the Birmingham special, reaching Peachtree station at 9:30 a. m., and a committee of local alumni will meet them and give them a ride over the city before the time for the departure of the special. Henry Morgan, secretary of the Atlanta Alumni association, is in charge of the arrangements.

CHICAGO SPENDS 220 MILLIONS FOR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Chicago, December 24.—(AP)—Santa Claus came to Chicago tonight bowed under the weight of a $200,000,000 pack of gifts.

Leading merchants who a few days ago estimated Chicago would spend about $194,000,000 for Christmas presents, tonight revised the figures at the close of the eleventh-hour rush, and the more optimistic said that at least $200,000,000 had been expended here for Christmas presents.

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

THE QUEER CHRISTMAS GUEST

By Thornton W. Burgess.

A Merry Christmas to you all! May naught but happiness befall.

—The Quaddies.

It was Christmas morning. The great storm was over. The Green Forest and the Green Meadows were no longer green; they were white. Jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun, climbing up in the blue, blue sky, looked down on a world of white—a sparkling, shimmering, shining world—a very beautiful world. Farmer Brown's Boy, up at daylight, had to dig a path out to the barn. And when his work in the barn was done, he remembered his feathered friends and Happy Jack Squirrel. He cleared off the feeding shelves and then filled them with Christmas bounty.

Inside Farmer Brown's house was good cheer. In one room was a big fireplace and there the red tongues of fire leaped up the black throat of the chimney and threw out welcome heat and added to the joy of Christmas morning. From the shed, Farmer Brown's Boy brought in great armfuls of wood—big logs that would burn long. He whistled as he worked, for his heart was filled with Christmas joy. Mother Brown sang as she went about her household work, for there was joy in her heart, also. Farmer Brown neither whistled nor sang, but the happiness of the day was reflected in his face.

Mother Brown ended a song with a little shriek. Farmer Brown's Boy rushed to see what was the matter. Mother Brown had retreated to the far corner of the room. Farmer Brown's Boy instantly what he had frightened her. Scooping and darting about was what at first he took for a bird. But almost instantly he saw it. It was a little brown person with wonderful leathery wings.

"Flitter the Bat!" cried Farmer Brown's Boy. "What under the sun did he come from? He must know it is Christmas and has come out to be our Christmas guest. But where can he have been hiding all this time?"

"I don't know," declared Mother Brown, "but the sooner he goes back where he came from, the better I'll like it." She had thrown an apron over her head.

Farmer Brown's Boy grinned. "What is that for?" he asked mischievously.

"So that that bat won't get in my hair," replied Mother Brown.

Farmer Brown's Boy laughed right out. "Flitter doesn't want to get in my hair," he said. "I'll venture to say that you couldn't make him get in your hair. Just notice how he never touches anything as he flies about. See him go under that chair without touching it. If there is any one more harmless than little Flitter, I don't know who it is. I think it is wonderful to have him here on Christmas day. It is like having a bit of summer inside, while outside everything is winter. I wish I knew where he has been keeping himself all this time. It is funny that we haven't seen him before."

Butter Brown soon found that what her boy had said was true and that really there was nothing to fear from the little brown-coated flyer. Presently she began to enjoy his presence there. For a little while he flew about. Then he hung by his heels, head down, from a window shade. A little later he flew about again and then disappeared as mysteriously as he had appeared. Such fun as they had hunting for him! The outside door had not been opened, so they knew he had not gone out. He must be somewhere in the house. Farmer Brown joined in the hunt. They looked under everything; they looked behind everything. Nowhere was Flitter to be found. Their little Christmas

Salvation Army Santa Will Visit 1,000 Tots Today

Santa Claus will find more than 1,000 children of Atlanta's poor today through the gentle guidance of the Salvation army.

Christmas baskets were distributed Monday to 400 families here as part of the nation-wide gesture of practical Christianity which Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, wife of the president, assisted during the day in the national capital.

This afternoon 500 youngsters will come face to face with the jovial saint at the territorial headquarters temple, 54 Ellis street, in Candy, fruit, nuts and toys will be generously apportioned to the 500 selected by Adjutant Eunice McLaure, relief officer, as the neediest of all the two-struck legions on the army's relief list. Nearly all of them will come to the Christmas tree from their first really square meal of the winter, served from the baskets and bags of groceries purchased with funds tossed into the Christmas kettles which occupied street corners all last week.

Community trees for hundreds more will be lighted in the four community halls of the army tonight.

Clothing and toys collected from Atlanta homes on phone call to try 2224 and repaired in the industrial home on Luckie street were distributed to scores of others. Bloomer directed collection of clothing and toys, Staff Captain Norman Marshall arranged the Christmas tree at headquarters and a team of men from training college here distributed the Christmas bags and baskets.

Chinese Wives Costly.

Shanghai, December 24.—(United Press)—Chinese business men whose importance is rated according to the number of wives are protesting against the increased price of helpmates. Since Nanking was made the capital and national officials spend so much time in Shanghai the price of a good wife had risen alarmingly. Lower class Chinese still can obtain young girls for as low as $100, Shanghai currency.

Boy's Christmas quest became his quest for all winter long. (Copyright, 1923, for The Constitution.)

THE YOUNG PRETENDERS

By Alice Grant Rosman

SYNOPSIS.

Lying helplessly in bed after a motor accident, Hugo Donaldson broods because his father, with whom he'd quarreled just before the smash, never visits him. He decides he must be dead. Lady Eleanor Wise, his aunt, tells him his friend, Paul Mostyn, is in prison for stealing; that he married a girl of whom his family disapproved, and that Bunny Mostyn is heartbroken because she expected to marry Paul.

Bunny calls to tell Hugo she believes Paul has been the victim of blackmailers. She is shocked that his family failed him. The girl assures Hugo she was never engaged to Paul, but would like to help him because of their lifelong friendship. Hugo gives her his roadster, which he calls Miss Trotsky, her his roadster, which he calls Miss Trotsky.

Paul's wife, living in disguise as Mrs. Hallett, accepts an offer to become Hugo's reader. She is glad to have an opportunity to study these friends of Paul whom she believes his enemies, and is surprised to learn Hugo is loyal and only his accident has prevented him from helping Paul. Right, Hugo's nurse, cautions Mrs. Hallett never to mention the boy's father, as the sight of Sir Richard so disturbed Hugo while delirious that the doctors advise his keeping away. Hugo and his reader become fast friends, and Bunny is the only visitor he is always glad to see.

The editors insist that Hugo has been tilted and needs pity, which so enrages Hugo that he schemes to stop the gossip, and his upon announcing that he and Bunny have been secretly engaged for some time. The girl joins him secretly in the conspiracy, and then thrills him with a kiss.

INSTALLMENT XLIV.

Mrs. Hallett arrived at last and Hugo said to her in a morose voice: "I'm in a bad temper this morning. You don't mind, do you?"

"Very much," answered Mrs. Hallett, but she smiled.

"Don't you think it's a rotten world, Henrietta? I can't see what's the use of it myself. I'd like to take a hammer and smash it up."

"Wasn't . . . wasn't the ring all right?" asked the girl, anxiously.

"O, rather. It isn't Bunny or the ring, but the ass who had the cheek to give it to her. I'll bet you despise him in your heart, even if you won't admit it."

"You must not be morbid," admonished the girl. "It isn't as if you hadn't been engaged before your accident."

"No," said Hugo in a flat voice. "Another lie that every one believed, and kind little Henrietta, trying to justify him in his own eyes, knew the truth. He would have liked to tell her, but without the impulse, feeling it weak. Only a contemptible fool would tell a thoroughly good lie and then go and blab about it, and this was Bunny's secret, too."

Warmth crept into his heart at that remembrance, for he had done it for her, and even if he never got well and had to give her up there would be thought that he had silenced Molly Mostyn's wagging tongue and Aunt Eleanor's tales of Bunny.

"Let's go to Syria for an hour or two, shall we?" he suggested. "I'm feeling better, thank you."

"Yet when she read to him he found he was too tired to attend and his mind roved instead over the past week and all the unexpected drama it had brought him. Paul's troubles, Bunny's love, the conviction of his father's anger and injustice; Hugo II, that amazing gesture of friendship from Alison and Bill, Tessie marrying Roland, and the true story of Mr. and Mrs. Anstruther; the peridy of Molly Mostyn and Aunt Eleanor; the epic of Bunny and Robin; his mother suddenly announcing a desire to do something for Paul."

"Rim," said Hugo to himself, and became suddenly conscious of Henrietta's voice, low pitched and beautiful, reading of Semiramis.

She was apart from all these others, as much apart as though she had walked into his world from another he had never seen. Yet she, too, was in the panorama, steadfast and still and secret, but very understanding.

She was a stranger, coming and going every day from a background he could not visualize, filled with thoughts he could not guess, and yet she was a friend.

Rather like Paul's girl, Bunny had thought her. Hugo pondered that was glad, not only because it marked Bunny's approbation of Henrietta, but because it reflected credit on Mrs. Paul.

"I say, Henrietta, you were going to read me Paul's case," he interrupted her reading to say.

"She put her book down for a moment, looked at the clock, and protested.

"There won't be time this morning, but I haven't forgotten."

"This afternoon, then. Promise."

"Very well. This afternoon."

Her voice was rather faint and she took up the reading again quickly, as though to ward off argument.

"You needn't be worried," he said persuasively, as the little clock pointed to twelve and she rose to go. "You think I'll get in a state if you read it to me. I know, but I won't. I give you my word. I've got over that a bit, because things are going to be all right for Paul again."

She turned her head away and made a great business of straightening her hat, but her voice betrayed her as she said:

"And for you, too. Please do believe that."

"And you and Hallett," said Hugo, touched. Let's all believe it."

She gave him a little wavering smile and hurried from the room.

"I hope Hallett's a nice chap," thought Hugo, waiting when luncheon was over for her return.

"Wonder what her name is, really. She has never told me. Quiet sort of girl."

Mrs. Hallett, returning found him gazing into space at a future that held wonders that were nearer to her than she guessed.

"You know, the only thing that's wrong with old Paul, Henrietta," he said, as though continuing a conversation, "is that he's a bit careless, but that isn't a crime."

"No," said Mrs. Hallett.

She opened her bag and took out the newspaper cutting as though she had come to a place where she could no longer deny him anything, but she did not sit down at once. She looked around the room, bringing her eyes back at last to the face of Paul's friend, and saying steadily:

"You said things were to be all right for him again. I suppose . . ."

"O lord no!" Hugo's laugh was hard. "Little you know, then. They won't come round. You know my view of parents, Henrietta. I've told you. Paul's people have been pretty beastly from the start, but the old lad has friends, and they're putting their heads together. There will be money for him and all that."

He could not tell her that he and Bunny were the friends, because he wanted her to see Paul as the splendid fellow he really was, not just a chap depending for aid upon a girl and a silly thing like him. But there was his mother, who would carry more weight in Henrietta's mind, perhaps.

"My mother's on Paul's side for one," he said eagerly, and Bunny's guardian and various other people. Paul was always a popular fellow, and you see the point is he didn't do it and has been scandalously treated all round."

"I see."

Mrs. Hallett sat down and took up the cutting and began to look them through, then put them down again.

"They won't have anything to do with this girl he married, I suppose?" she said.

"Paul's wife? O, rather. It was only the Mostyns who were down on Mrs. Paul, and, if you'll believe me, Henrietta, they had the dam' cheek to try and buy the poor girl off . . ."

afterward, I mean, when Paul was safely out of the way. That will show you what they are."

"You don't think it might be better for him if they succeeded?"

"Better? Why, hang it all, she's the girl Paul married, and he has a right to his wife. Of course, you only know what the newspapers say, but I'll bet you wouldn't let any one buy you off behind Hallett's back, and this girl is rather like you, Bunny says so."

"Like me? O, nonsense!"

Hugo thought she was insulted and almost angry and he hastened to reassure her.

"She meant it as a compliment . . . she did really. Bunny thinks a lot of Mrs. Paul."

"Does she? But she couldn't be like me. It's ridiculous. I . . . I saw a photograph of her in one of the newspapers."

"No, really like, of course," admitted Hugo, soothingly. "Only rather, Bunny said. She thought it was just your voice and manner that reminded her, but she meant it nicely. I give you my word. Bunny admired Mrs. Paul. Nice girl she said she was, and she went into the court and applauded her. You read me the case and I'll show where." Dashed exciting, it must have been."

New York, December 24.—(AP)—The final evening of December contracts was the chief trading feature in the cotton market here today, but some trade buying and covering was reported and after selling at 20.05 early January rallied to 20.20, or 13 points net higher and closed at 20.17. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 10 to 18 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of 2 to 7 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables. The circulation of December notices which were later estimated at about 12,000 bales, caused some liquidation in that position which eased the price off to 20.24, or 10 points net lower during the early trading. After deliveries held relatively steady, however, and after the notices had been stopped, December turned up on covering. The price advanced to 20.42, or 9 points net higher, and the last sale reported was 20.41 just before trading closed.

The current month ended at December. After the passing of December, the market showed a generally steady tone, with prices working up to 20.47 for May and with active positions generally showing net advances of 13 to 19 points. Closing quotations were a point or two off from the best under realizing. The buying which was more active on the afternoon advance, was attributed chiefly to covering, but was supposed to include some trade demand. In spite of the holidays, people with trade connections abroad said there had been some European buying during the day.

Reports that the American cotton market was being bought by one of prominent world stock houses last week had exceeded previous for the period, came in for some bullish comment during the morning and may have contributed to the steady undertone of the market. It encouraged the talk of an increased business in textiles after the turn of the year.

The Liverpool market will remain closed until next Thursday morning. Private cables today reflected a tentative buying trade feeling and covering in the market there, but said there was a holiday feeling in Manchester with only a small amount of cloth and yarn. Receipts, 45,478; United States port stocks, 2,173,942; exports today, 32,210; marking 4,582,099 so far this season.

MARKET SEEKS HIGHER LEVELS.

New Orleans, December 24.—(AP)—Cotton prices sought higher levels in today's market under the influence of a demand prompted by better Liverpool cables, favorable textile news, large exports for the day and the absence of year end liquidation. December contracts closed at 19.45, or 15 points net up. The general market closed steady at net advances of 14 to 15 points.

Liverpool cables were better than due at the start here and the market opened steady in response. Prices continued to advance after the start, gaining nearly 50 points a half from Saturday's close, but 2 to 3 points of the improvement was lost in a flurry of pre-holiday realizing.

The offerings were fairly well absorbed at the decline, however, and traders rebought on the large exports for the day. Prices traded to new highs for the period and practically all contracts closed at 19.45, or 15 points net up. The general market closed steady at net advances of 14 to 15 points.
